KILMARNOCK, VIRGINIA

Counties ban burning

LANCASTER—Due to the extremely dry conditions during Virginia's spring open burning regulation period, the Lancaster County Board of Supervisors, through its Department of Emergency Services, has declared an absolute ban on open burning.

The ban became effective at 3 p.m., March 27, throughout Lancaster County.

The open burning ban will remain in effect until conditions improve and the risk of uncontrolled fire is diminished.

Citizens are asked to contact the Lancaster County Sheriff's Office if an open fire is observed during this open burning ban.

Similar bans have been enacted in Northumberland, Richmond and Westmoreland counties in addition to the state's 4 p.m. burning law.

Hearings set on pier extension

IRVINGTON—The proposed extension of a pier on Carters Creek is set for public hearing by the planning commission and town council in Irvington.

Judy W. Motley seeks a conditional use permit to extend a pier at her property at 38 Creekview Lane an additional 100 feet. With the addition, the pier would extend some 212 feet from shore and some 100 feet beyond the established U. S. Army Corps of Engineers navigation line in the creek.

Irvington town administrator Gil Unangst said the pier extension is needed to get to a water depth of five feet. The Corps of Engineers has approved the extension, he added.

The planning commission hearing is Tuesday, April 4, and the town council hearing is Thursday, April 13. Both meetings begin at 7:30 p.m. in the town office at 235 Steamboat Road.

White Stone voting venue could change

WHITE STONE—The town council for White Stone will meet Thursday, April 6, to consider a change in the location where town citizens vote.

Council will conduct a public hearing at 7 p.m. in the town hall to consider an ordinance to change the voting location for the May 2 town council election.

As proposed, the polling place would move from 572 Chesapeake Drive to 433 Rappahannock Drive, which is the address of the new town hall.

Volunteers needed for water quality monitoring project

TAPPAHANNOCK–Volunteers who are interested in the waters of the Great Wicomico River, Corrotoman River and Lancaster Creek are needed to monitor water quality.

The project is sponsored by the Tidewater Resource Conservation and Development Council (RC&D) in Tappahannock working under a grant from Virginia Department of Conservation and Recreation for the Coastal Nonpoint Pollution Control Program.

The purpose of the project will be the documentation of water quality conditions enabling better assessment of the effectiveness of "best management practices" and other conservation programs in effect in the region.

Kilduff begins campaign

Carmen Kilduff formally announced her candidacy for Kilmarnock town council during a March 26 meeting of supporters.

Kilduff said her motivation to run for town council comes from her belief that citizens need to be actively engaged in the decisions that directly affect their community. In order to achieve such active engagement, Kilduff believes Kilmarnock citizens "need to be, or more importantly, deserve to be," informed of the process and issues before the town council.

"In order for our community to be engaged and involved, open government is a must," Kilduff said. "As a member of town council, I will work hard to keep our citizens aware of the issues before us and engage folks in the conversation. Only through open government can we be prepared to actively participate," she added. "It's the difference between proactively working on events to occur within our community versus reacting to events that happen to our community."

Gov. Kaine submits budget bills for 2006 special session

RICHMOND—Gov. Timothy M. Kaine last Monday submitted two budget bills for consideration by the 2006 Special Session of the General Assembly, which convened to continue work on budget and transportation issues.

House Bill 5003 and Senate Bill 5001, the so-called "caboose bill," covers state spending for the remaining three months of Fiscal Year 2006. House Bill 5004 and Senate Bill 5002 represents the biennial budget for 2006-08.

According to the governor's office, these bills build on the introduced budget and incorporate Gov. Kaine's executive amendments submitted in January, including his transportation proposal, and new amendments, including:

• $285.5 million to cover the cost of reclassifying proceeds from the automobile insurance premium tax from the General Fund to transportation.

• $39.5 million to fund an increase in the salary adjustment for teachers, principals, assistant principals, librarians, guidance counselors and aides, from 3.0 percent to 4.0 percent, effective December 1, 2006. The average teacher salary in Virginia currently sits at 95 percent ($45,377) of the national average.

• A one-time appropriation of $12 million to be distributed to localities to support firefighting activities. Firefighters are among first responders to terrorist attacks, hazardous substance spills, natural disasters and accidents.

• $16.4 million in funding to localities to cover the cost for enhanced retirement benefits to sheriffs' deputies.

• approximately $3.5 million to prevent 60 mostly urban local governments from receiving less in HB599 law enforcement funds than they received last fiscal year.

• An amendment to increase the retirement multiplier for state police troopers from 1.7 to 2.0 percent, and to provide the necessary funding to pay into the Virginia Retirement System. This action will enhance the retirement benefits for state troopers and will encourage more individuals to consider becoming state troopers in a tight and competitive job market.

• $3 million to raise the cap on the distribution of profits to localities by the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. Since fiscal year, 2005, such distributions have been frozen at $4.1 million per year due to budget constraints.

• an additional $1.6 million for the Virginia Department of Veterans Services to hire 15 additional service administrators and claims examiners to assist the approximately 750,000 military veterans who live in Virginia apply for federal benefits.

• $1.3 million to provide a $2,000 re-enlistment bonus for eligible members of the Virginia National Guard who re-enlist between April 1 and September 30.

Connect Rappahannock brings folks together

TAPPAHANNOCK—Some 125 community members attended the official launching of Connect Rappahannock March 16 at St. Margaret's School in Tappahannock.

Connect Rappahannock is a web-based information network serving Essex, Lancaster, Middlesex, Northumberland, Richmond and Westmoreland counties.

According to Connect Rappahannock coordinator Leslie Franklin, the intent is to link nonprofit organizations, churches, schools, and government agencies. Joining the network is as simple as visiting www.connectnetwork.org/rappahannock and signing up for the email list. The list now has over 500 users.

After joining, users can email the entire membership about programs, grants, events and other service information. Organizers anticipate the network will be very beneficial to agencies throughout the Northern Neck.

Ann Jennings shares her thoughts on running a nonprofit organization.

The keynote speaker for the launching event, Chesapeake Bay Foundation Virginia executive director Ann Jennings, explained her best ideas and practices for running a nonprofit organization.

She reminded folks not to spread themselves too thin; to know their subject; to respond to criticisms; to negotiate in good faith; to avoid being "perfect" while being good; to always be polite; to use board members; and to form partnerships with other nonprofit groups.

A passionate concern for a cause, she said, is no substitute for practicality. The passion must be there, but must be accompanied by purposefulness, thoughtfulness, and an ability to use tools as strategically as other successful institutions do.

She congratulated Connect Rappahannock members for their resourcefulness in joining with other nonprofits to brainstorm mutual solutions, citing a "strength in numbers" that can help instigate change.

Among other speakers, Rappahannock Community College president Dr. Elizabeth Crowther welcomed the assembly. She also recognized such local leaders as former member of the House of Delegates and former Secretary of Natural Resources the Honorable W. Tayloe Murphy Jr., Del. Harvey Morgan, former Del. Albert Pollard, Del. Rob Wittman aide Blake Hite, and Rep. Jo Ann Davis aide Chris Jones.

The Rev. Dr. Edward King Jr., a Jessie Ball duPont Fund senior program officer, addressed the fund's investment in the network and broader quality of life benefits that will result.

Dr. Nancy Stutts, director of the Connect Network at the University of Richmond, demonstrated the features of the website, including links to local agencies and organizations, volunteer opportunities, a community calendar, and access to local, state and national research and reports.

Franklin ended the program by challenging each member of the audience to sign on to the email list, and to spread the word about the network to others.

She urges all Northern Neck residents to get involved in the community by joining the network. She is available for speaking engagements about the benefits of Connect Rappahannock and information sessions on how to use the site. She can be reached at 333-6789, or at lfranklin@connectnetworkorg.

Police Reports

Lancaster County Sheriff Ronnie Crockett reported nine arrests last week.

A Closer Look

by Jane Tims

We relate dollhouses to dainty little girls. But Nancy Hubbard Clark was the mother of two young boys when she had a dollhouse shell cut by the Kilmarnock Planing Mill in 1963. Her baby daughter arrived a few years later, inciting a burgeoning world of miniatures and Nancy's dedication to what would become a lifetime project.

An interior design graduate of Richmond Professional Institute, Nancy bought early pieces from the Mark Farmer catalogue and on Irvington Road at The Pink Door, where Brad Stephens's mother, Marge, made miniature furniture for Marshall Field Co. and sold Shackman miniatures, now highly collectible.

In 1974, Nancy entered her unfinished dollhouse into a hobby show sponsored by Grace, Trinity and St. Mary's Whitechapel Episcopal churches. There she saw possibilities and began to pattern her dollhouse after Waterview Farm, her father's home place built around 1790 on Antipoison Creek.

Although she added a two-tiered porch to the front and recast the two chimneys, Nancy is quick to note that the dollhouse is by no means a scaled replica of Waterview. It is instead reminiscent of her grandparents' federal revival home, sold in 1946 and now a handsome horse farm.

"It doesn't mean a lot to other people," said Nancy, "but it's a potpourri of my life."

For 16 years the only grandchild of her father's parents, Nancy spent summers at Waterview playing croquet, listening to the "chachas" or locusts from the porch swing, doing "fancy work" with Nannie, eating hand-cranked peach ice cream, reading "Gone With the Wind," playing the rosewood piano in the parlor, sewing on Nannie's treadle Singer machine and taking ballet lessons from two sisters who came from Richmond to teach.

She has captured those images in the house. On the parlor mantel is a ballerina figurine that represents both her dream of being a toe dancer and her memory of Nannie's letting her play with the figurine of a boy with a fishing pole and a girl feeding chickens. During World War II, warships practicing in the bay rocked the house and the mirror over the mantel fell and shattered the figurine.

"On the parlor mantel is a ballerina figurine that represents both her dream of being a toe dancer and her memory of Nannie's letting her play with the figurine of a boy with a fishing pole and a girl feeding chickens. During World War II, warships practicing in the bay rocked the house and the mirror over the mantel fell and shattered the figurine."

To prevent spending every waking moment on the house, Nancy has disciplined herself to work on it only in the dead of winter. She has had lots of help, so that the house is not only of memories but also of friendship.

Her husband, Irwin Clark, deceased, used a tiny power saw to shingle the roof with tongue depressors. Richard Newlon wired the house and made the table on which it sits. Treasured friends have made hooked or needlepoint rugs and added Limoges china, a 1930s baby doll, a cloisonné vase, velvet for draperies or scraps for quilts. Nancy's daughter-in-law, Beth Clark, gave her a basket of rose-colored knitting.

Nancy has loved finding the perfect item at shops and shows along the coast. The ballerina figurine, for example, made by a fine artisan, almost was snagged by a woman too tipsy to complete the purchase. Delighted, Nancy stepped right up.

More fun than buying expensive miniatures, however, is converting attic finds into viable pieces. She turned a hair ornament from her teenage days into a fireplace fender, a pair of her mother's drop earrings into andirons for the parlor, a cut glass salt into a punch bowl, and Nippon salts into chamber pots. A silver sword, a favor from a Kappa Alpha Order dance long ago, hangs above a fireplace.

"Everyone's dollhouse is self-expressive," said Nancy. "I have a mixture of good things and not so good and homemade. Your eye develops. You see that something has possibilities."

She used French knots to make a Minuet bedspread like those from Irwin's family's Morgan-Jones mills. She made girandoles and a cruet set from jewelry findings, lambrequins from picture frames in Irwin's mother's attic, powder dishes from a broken string of Victorian beads.

She made a mantel clock from the face of the watch she wore during high school and a mantel basket from her mother's ring, turned upside down. She used a blouse button for a door-knocker and trimmed canopies, bedspreads and dust ruffles with her mother's tatting and drawn work from the Grace Church yard sale. Tiny family pictures, including a Clark daguerreotype, are framed throughout.

Like homes, dollhouses evolve. Nancy's version of Waterview goes next to her daughter, Cameron, in Charlottesville.

Reflections

by John Howard Farmer
pastor, Irvington Baptist Church

What a question for a Baptist

Saturday, Hazel and I traveled to a holy sanctuary, Campbell Memorial Presbyterian Church, inland from Weems Wharf. We were there to celebrate the life of a gentlewoman, gone to her eternal reward. Surprised to see me there, one of the brethren popped, "Just how Calvinistic are you, preacher? What do you believe about predestination?" It tickled my fancy.

Later, back home in Irvington, I snuggled into my study, morning coffee in hand, to remind myself of America's preeminent Calvinist, Jonathan Edwards (1703-1758), Colonial preacher and writer. Some agree to Edwards being America's greatest theologian. Some Baptists would stop a bit short of such an affirmation, though not all.

Calvinism is the religious doctrine of John Calvin (1509-1564, a French refugee arriving in Geneva in 1536), which emphasizes that salvation comes through faith in God, and also that God has already chosen those who will believe and be saved.

Edwards was born in East Windsor, on the banks of the Connecticut River. He spent the vast majority of his life there, never venturing far until he went to college at Yale. Early on, he did not seem headed for religious pursuit. However, by age 12 this intelligent son of a brilliant father, Timothy Edwards, could hardly do otherwise. Jonathan's lifetime of spiritual searching was forever shaped beneath his father's strict Calvinism. Timothy preceded Jonathan in death by only a few days.

St. Stephens Church
Heathsville

Following his studies at Yale (age 15), Jonathan married Sarah Pierpont (1709-1758), who died only months after him. Over his lifetime Edwards merged the roles of a spiritual and actual father to a growing family. His close relationships were predominately with women: his sisters, mother, wife and numerous daughters, perhaps accounting for the preaching success he had with 18th century New England women. He was less well received by the gentlemen of his day.

After years of wrestling with his soul, Edwards would claim "that God had intentionally condemned uncounted numbers of souls to eternal torment in Hell even as he selected the few elect for Heaven." His God was a Calvinist God.

Subsequent to Yale, he accepted a pastorate in New York City, later moved to a farming village in Connecticut, before taking up his post at Northampton, Mass. There he marched into a religious revival known as the beginning of America's First Great Awakening. Religious zeal with conversions swept across the land.

Calvinism owned his life in a way few mortals could imitate. This affinity and dedication to strict standards of judging who was and was not saved eventually got him into trouble. It cost him his Northampton pulpit. He became a missionary to the Mohicans at Stockbridge, hoping to win their political and religious allegiance to his cause.

Not just a minister, Edwards was also an educator, teaching briefly at Yale and later at Princeton, where he died within weeks of taking up his position as president.

Known for his most famous hellfire and brimstone sermon, "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God," he preached damnation in order to scare people into salvation. His God was angry with sinners for their defiance. God had every right to let sinners fall into hellfire, yet held them in his hands, giving them a chance to save themselves, a chance undeserved. Edwards lived to help people take advantage of that chance to find their place in Heaven.

Determined not to let the demands of life, family and society impinge on his mission, Edwards was committed to living every moment of every day as if it were his last. He urgently pressed this goal toward family, peers and parishioners alike. They had to love and appreciate God's will the right way of reformed Calvinism, the faith brought ashore by Puritan settlers. Edwards invested much time in his study, composing his sermons and religious articles. He feared the growing threat of Arminianism, which rejected Calvinism, and the Roman Catholic Church.

A self-admitted intellectual, Edwards wrestled with pride all of his life. He struggled to maintain a Christian humility as well as a leading role in the religious life of New England.

He loved being outdoors, seeing in nature the manifestation of God's love and beauty. He suffered frequent bouts of illness, a man of the mind and heart, not of the flesh, who ate poorly and saw nothing wrong with an indulgence in chocolate. Intellectual, physical, spiritual and mental issues warred within.

Edwards became fatally ill after inoculating himself with smallpox (more dangerous than present-day vaccination). One was deliberately infected with a small amount of genuine, low-potency serum. He agreed to do so to demonstrate his comfort with modern science.

He gracefully accepted his impending death, revealing the extent to which he was equally at ease with the difficult tenets of Calvinist faith. As his thoughts turned Heavenward, he told a daughter to "give my kindest love to my dear wife, and tell her, that the uncommon union, which has so long subsisted between us, has been of such a nature, as I trust is spiritual, and therefore will continue forever: and I hope she will be supported under so great a trial, and submit cheerfully to the will of God."

For Jonathan Edwards, life, like God, was tough.

A graveside funeral service will be held Thursday, March 30, at Clarksbury United Methodist Church Cemetery in Hardyville at 11 a.m. Following the service, the family will receive friends in the church fellowship hall.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, Mercer Plaza Building, 4600 Cox Road, Suite 130, Glen Allen, VA 23060.

Bristow-Faulkner Funeral Home in Saluda handled the arrangements.

Harold P. Eubank

KILMARNOCK–Harold Porter Eubank, 81, died March 23, 2006.

Mr. Eubank was born October 23, 1924, in Baltimore. He spent his early years in Kilmarnock with his parents, Gordon and Gazelle Eubank, owners of the store Eubank and Son. The Eubank family was part of the original community dating to the early 1700s and was active in the development of the town of Kilmarnock.

He entered the College of William and Mary and was interrupted by World War II. He served in the U.S. Army where he received a Bronze Star. He then returned to complete his undergraduate degree at the College of William and Mary where, in 1948, he received a bachelor's in physics. In 1950, he received a master's in physics from Syracuse University and in 1953 a doctorate in the field from Brown University.

He remained at Brown as an assistant professor until he joined the project research staff of the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory in July 1959.

He was awarded a Distinguished Associate Award from the U.S. Department of Energy in 1981 for his leadership in the production and study of neutral beam-heated high temperature plasmas in support of the nation's magnetic fusion energy research program.

In 1982, he was awarded the Elliott Cresson Medal and a life fellow membership by the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia "for his many contributions to plasma physics and for his technical expertise and leadership in the achievement of new temperature levels in tokamak plasmas through the injection of neutral beams."

He was head of the Neutral Beams Plasma Physics Laboratory in Princeton, N.J., and was the chairman of the Division of Plasma Physics at the American Physical Society in 1977. He was listed in American Men and Women of Science in publications between the late '70s and '80s. He published over 100 papers and spoke frequently at scientific meetings around the world.

Upon retirement in 1985, he returned to his family farm in Kilmarnock. He was a promoter of the creative and performing arts, and built The Arts Building on a portion of his farm to encourage the development of the arts in the community. He was active in the productions of the Center for the Arts, the non-profit corporation that for 15 years produced classic American musicals. He spent many hours building sets and doing whatever was necessary to produce the musicals.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Alice Bonner Eubank; two sons and a daughter-in-law, H. Porter Eubank II and Charles Stanley Eubank and Tamra Eubank; a daughter and a son-in-law, Elizabeth Eubank Stern and Randall Stern; two granddaughters, Caitlin Hinman Stern and Hailey Servadio Stern; and two stepchildren and their spouses, Diane Jettinghoff and Edward Jettinghoff, and Steven Douglas Witte and Kari Witte.

A memorial service will be announced at a later date.

Currie Funeral Home in Kilmarnock handled the arrangements.

T. W. George

SENORA—T. W. "Walter" George, 89, of Senora died March 23, 2006.

Mr. George was a member of White Stone United Methodist Church.

He was a life member of Lancaster County Lions Club and a founding member of the Corrottoman Civic Center.

He was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II and a retired carpenter.

He was predeceased by a son, Walter Bayne George.

He is survived by his wife, Violet C. George; a son and daughter-in-law, Sam and Faye George of Senora; four grandchildren with three spouses, Scott and Peggy George of Senora, Samuel Wayne and Hope George of Chesterfield, Daphne and Jim Smith of Weems, and Shelia George of Senora; six great-grandchildren; and a sister, Marie Guthermuth of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Funeral services were held March 27 at Currie Funeral Home in Kilmarnock with Rev. John H. Farmer officiating. Interment was in Corrottoman Baptist Church Cemetery in Ottoman. Pallbearers were Emerson Harding, E.O. Harding, George Thomas, Terry Haydon, Lindsey Beckham and Benjamin Lewis.

Memorials may be made to the Corrottoman Civic Center, 10308 Courthouse Road, Lancaster, VA 22503.

Winston R. Hall

WILLIAMSBURG—Winson R. Hall died in Williamsburg March 22, 2006.

Mr. Hall was born in Charlottesville. He was a World War II veteran.

He is survived by a friend, Helen Baker; two children, Susan Williams Hall Delano of Wicomico Church and Jeffre Winston Hall of Spencer, Mass.; three grandchildren, Hunter Eugene Hall of Wicomico Church, and Wesley Harrison Hall and Erika Sydney Hall, both of Spencer; a daughter-in-law, Shelly Hall of Spencer; and a son-in-law, Elliott Earl Delano of Wicomico Church.

Donald Heddings

KINSALE—Donald Heddings died March 23, 2006.

Mr. Heddings had a distinguished civil service career as deputy commander for central accounting and financial operations in the Navy Accounting and Financing Center in Washington, D.C.

He helped establish the system which the Navy uses to control its budget. He led the team that created the Navy Cost Information System and redesigned the Navy's financial management and reporting systems. He executed a complete re-write of Navy finance center procedures for operational systems. This led to official recognition in public ceremonies by the undersecretary of the Navy who bestowed the Superior Civilian Service Medal and Citation.

He is survived by his wife of 60 years, Marian Heddings; four children and their spouses, Charles and Brenda Heddings, Charleen and James Wilson, Mark and Wendy Heddings and Marsha and Jerry Duncan; eight grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Memorial services were held March 27 at Carmel United Methodist Church in Kinsale with Rev. Christopher Andress officiating.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the Kinsale Volunteer Fire Department.

Faulkner Family Funeral Home and Crematory in Burgess handled the arrangements.

Calvin C. Hill

BURGESS—Calvin Clifford Hill, 74, of Burgess died March 23, 2006, at the Lancashire Convalescent and Rehabilitation Center in Kilmarnock.

Mr. Hill was born in White Stone July 12, 1931, to George Armenus and Fannie Coleman Hill. He was the youngest of ten children. He attended A.T. Wright High School where he excelled as a baseball pitcher.

He married Mary Lawson in October 1957. No children were born to them, but they raised a foster daughter, Cynthia, and four nephews, George, William, Alfred and Devon. He joined Macedonia Baptist Church in Heathsville, where his wife attended. He served in the Men's Club and with the kitchen committee.

After his wife's death, he returned to Mt. Vernon Baptist Church in White Stone. As a teenager, he had joined his brother, Russell, and cousins, Bo and C.J., in a church quartet. At Mt. Vernon he also served as a trustee, in the Men's Club, as the cemetarian and as a member of the Gospel Chorus.

In later years, he joined the Northern Neck Chantey Singers and became the manager. He was a fisherman and the chanties gave him a powerful connection to the past. He was presented in the Folk Life Festival of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., on the PBS Black History Series, and in other venues.

He is survived by two sisters, Mable Hill of Baltimore and Genevieve Johnson of White Stone; a daughter and son-in-law, Cynthia and Nathaniel Parker; three grandchildren, Tyrone, Carla and Nevin Parker, all of Baltimore; two sisters-in-law, Juanita Hill of White Stone and Lillie Mae Lawson of Heathsville; and many nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

Funeral services were held March 26 at Mt. Vernon Baptist Church with interim pastor Edith R. Davenport officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery. Pallbearers were Preston Brown, Charles Brown, John Brittingham, Terry Taylor, Sam Winder and Warren Blackwell Jr. Honoraries were the Northern Neck Chantey Singers.

Berry O. Waddy Funeral Home near Lancaster handled the arrangements.

Christ Church season opens

Christ Church volunteers Carole Jean McConnico (left) and Chris Bresett prepare the museum shop for the 2006 season. The shop is in the museum gallery and opens April 1. Christ Church is open year round. Tours are offered from April through November, Monday to Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. For information, call 438-6855, or visit www.christchurch1735.com.

Bethany UMC plans Easter observances

Bethany United Methodist Church in Reedville recently announced its Easter celebration plans.

On April 9 at 9:30 a.m., Palm Sunday will be celebrated with a children's palm parade at the church.

On April 13 at 7 p.m., Holy Thursday will be celebrated with a service entitled "Love One Another" and includes hand or foot washing.

On April 14, at 7 p.m., Good Friday will be celebrated with a Service of Candles that tells of the Passion of Christ. A gift is given to each person as they leave the church at the end of the service.

On April 16, Easter will be celebrated with two services. At 6:30 a.m., an outdoor Sunrise Service will be held on the shore of the Chesapeake Bay followed by a continental breakfast on the beach. Dress is casual. This service will be held at 752 Tranquility Road near Reedville. Follow the signs from Route 360.

At 9:30 a.m., the sanctuary service will be held at the church on Main Street. in Reedville. A Service of Music and Celebration will feature choir, organ and brass. A flower cross will be assembled. Please bring fresh flowers to add to the cross. Call the church office at 453-3282.

'Praising God' over soup

On April 6, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Heathsville will host a soup supper at 6 p.m. in the parish hall. A Lenten program will follow with the Rev. David Harper, rector of Church of the Apostles, in Fairfax. He will speak on the subject of "Praising God."

Rev. Harper was educated at Christ's College, Christchurch College, and St John's Theological College in Auckland, New Zealand. He was ordained in the Christchurch Diocese in 1964.

In 1966, he was baptized in the Holy Spirit, and became active in the Diocese and nation as a leader in renewal, running numerous preaching and teaching missions in local churches and at conferences and retreats.

In 1981, he left parish ministry to become director of Christian Advance Ministries, a non-denominational ministry established to serve the renewal nationally, and principally within the mainline churches of New Zealand.

In 1983, he joined the International Board of SOMA (Sharing of Ministries Abroad), an Anglican international mission agency dedicated to fostering renewal worldwide. He was SOMA's international chairman from 1988 to February 2006.

In 1986, he became rector of Church of the Apostles. He has ministered in a number of countries around the world, as well as in many parts of the United States.

Church men host ladies

On March 16, the men of Kilmarnock United Methodist Church hosted the women of the church and their escorts to a meal of corn beef and cabbage and baked chicken breast.

The men of the church host the ladies of the church annually in March following their February spaghetti dinner fund-raiser.

Eighty-four attended the event and meals were taken to those unable to attend. Tim Giese was the head chef. Entertainment was provided by "A Senior Moment," a local barbershop quartet who sang a variety of Irish melodies and led a group sing of traditional Irish favorites.

The Kilmarnock United Methodist Men will resume monthly breakfast meetings April 23 at 7:45 a.m. The breakfasts are open to all, regardless of affiliation. Call the church at 435-1797.

Sharon Baptist plans upcoming Easter events

On Easter Sunday, April 16, Sharon Baptist Church will hold a sunrise service at 6 a.m. and breakfast at 7 a.m. coordinated by Darlean Curry. Morning worship will be held at 11 a.m. with an Easter dramatization.

The dramatization, "The Day that Saved the World," was composed by Faith Waddy and Sandra Smyre. The scenes will include Jesus blessing the children, religious leaders plotting to kill Jesus, a woman anointing Jesus with perfume, Judas agreeing to betray Jesus, Jesus and the disciples sharing the Last Supper, Jesus predicting Peter's denial and Jesus agonizing in the garden.

The play continues with Jesus' betrayal and arrest. He stands trial before Pilate and is mocked by Roman soldiers. He is led away to be crucified and dies on the cross.

The drama ministry includes Waddy, Smyre, Aline Waller, Mary Maiden, Vera Waller, Barbara Tiggle, Ora Fisher, Pernell Waddy, Alicia Waddy and Everett Shorts. Some of the cast will include pastor Rodney Waller portraying Jesus, Vera Waller as Mary, Lloyd Hill as Pilate, Erica Curry as Pilate's wife and Pernell Waddy as the Roman centurion.

To participate in the play, call Faith Waddy at 435-3665.

Joseph Stallings practices carrying the cross.

St. Francis de Sales to present pageant

All are welcome to attend the annual presentation of the Living Stations of the Cross at St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church in Kilmarnock on Good Friday, April 14, at 5 p.m.

The stations will be presented by the youth of St. Francis and will include readings, meditations and music as the actors portray the passion of Christ as described by the traditional Stations of the Cross.

Rev. White to lead series

The Rev. Hal White (above), a retired Episcopal priest and licensed therapist, will lead "Wellness in the Last Third of Life." Classes will be offered Thursdays, April 6, 13, 20, and 27, at 10 a.m. at the Bay Center for Spiritual Development at 31 Noblett Lane in Kilmarnock. The fee is $60. To register, send $15 to Bay Center for Spiritual Development, P.O. Box 938, Kilmarnock, VA 22482, or call 435-4020.

During 2005, the Northern Neck Free Health Clinic delivered $4.8 million in health care to the area's underserved.

Since our founding in October of 1993, the Clinic has provided more than $17. 7 million in medical services. Volunteers have made this possible, through the contribution of 128,917 hours.

On Doctor's Day, and throughout the year, please join us in thanking physicians for their incredible contributions toward a healthy community.

At Walter Reed Hospital in Gloucester,
Your MRI Doesn't Have to be a Scary Experience.

Riverside Walter Reed Hospital has recently purchased the latest technology available in open MRI (Magnetic Resonance Imaging) equipment. The new open design of the Magnetom Espree MRI accommodates all size patients and eliminates anxiety and claustrophobia. For most exams, your head won't even be in the system due to its very short design. You won't experience that in any other MRI. But most important of all, the power is 3 times greater than the conventional Open MRI and assures that your doctor gets the most confident diagnosis.

Experience the most comfort and openness in MRI - one of only two locations on the East Coast.

LMS holds Science Fair

Lancaster Middle School on February 22 hosted its ninth annual Science Fair. Winners were announced and presented at PTA night.

Cash prizes were donated by the PTA and awarded to winners in each category at each grade level. Fifty-four students walked away with prizes totaling over $1,170.

Students across five grade levels were required to submit projects in one of the following categories: scientific models, scientific inventions, or scientific investigations. The goal of the Science Fair was to integrate all the academic areas in an effort to maximize mastery learning of the multiple Virginia Standards of Learning. History, English and language arts teachers assisted students in completing the required research and writing; science and math teachers instructed students on data collection, interpretation and graphing.

Judges from the community were invited to evaluate some 500 entries.

The project included a visit from the Virginia Science Museum's Bio-Express Mobile Classroom and Science by Van. The museum provided students with interactive exhibits and instructors that visited classrooms and provided hands-on scientific investigative instruction.

The Science Fair display was open to the public from 1 to 8 p.m. to let students show their accomplishments to family, friends and neighbors.

Winners in the fourth-grade investigations and models competitions were, from left (first row) Cameron Brent (second-place models), Olivia Beck (second-place investigations) and Moira Hull (first-place models); (next row) Aleah Hill (honorable mention models); (next row) Shawn Valdrighi (third-place investigations), Justin Lewis (third-place models), Beau Nickerson (first-place investigations) and Corey Self (honorable mention investigations). Photos of the winners in other grades will be published in subsequent weeks.

Community college tuition to increase

A tuition rate increase of approximately 6.3 percent for in-state students has recently been approved by the Virginia State Board for Community Colleges.

Beginning with the summer 2006 semester, Rappahannock Community College tuition will rise by $4.50 per credit hour, to $72.15. A system-wide technology fee will remain unchanged at $3.15 per credit hour, bringing the total to $75.65. For a full-time Virginia student, taking 15 credit hours per semester, a year's tuition and fees would amount to $2,269.50, an increase of $135.

"This tuition action continues our commitment to provide access and maintain affordability," said State Board chairman Chris Lumsden. "When we initiated our Dateline 2009 goals, we adopted a concept of maintaining as much predictability as possible, implementing manageable increases to avoid the spikes in tuition we have seen in the past."

Virginia Community College System Chancellor Dr. Glenn DuBois said Virginia community colleges remain an "excellent value" in higher education. With this latest action, the system will be able to "increase the availability of financial aid, particularly for part-time students, and begin progress on hiring more full-time faculty," he said.

Tuition for out-of-state students will increase by 10 percent, from $214 to $235.35 per credit hour, effective with the summer semester.

The rate at which Virginia community colleges may contract with businesses to serve their out-of-state employees is no longer the same as the in-state tuition rate, but $10 higher per credit hour, or $82.50. A tuition differential for Northern Virginia Community College of an additional $5.50 per credit hour was also approved.

Joe Thompson leads discussion of interview process with Northumberland High seniors.

NAPS delivers interview training session to seniors

The Northumberland Association for Progressive Stewardship (NAPS) recently organized presentations to the senior class to assist students in the scholarship application process and other interview situations.

Presenters were invited to address students in their government classes to discuss ways to maximize their chances of success in an interview.

The spearhead for the NAPS team was Joe Thompson, a local resident whose career includes service in the White House, the development of his own communications company, and extensive international travel as a communications consultant. NAPS Board members Susan Stubbs and Susan Lindsey offered perspectives from their career experiences, sharing strategies for successful interviewing skills.

The team addressed two major components in interviewing: communication and presentation. Students were urged to prepare themselves for the interview experience by anticipating likely questions and developing clear and confident responses based on an understanding of their personal goals and objectives.

In addition, the issue of appropriate dress and behavior were discussed with reference to prevailing norms in the business world. Presenters stressed the importance of advance research; applicants need to have an understanding of the interviewing organization and be able to demonstrate their claim to be the most suitable candidate.

The 12th-grade students of NHS were asked to introduce themselves and indicate their ambitions for the future. Responses ranged from careers in information technology, nursing and medicine, the military and the ministry, education, counseling, cosmetology, law and many other areas of professional interest.

A few students also responded with an honest "I don't know," but all appeared engaged by the presentation and thoughtful in reflecting on ways to enhance their chances of success. With graduation only a few months away, ideas regarding where the future could take them captured the attention of these seniors and they expressed their appreciation for the NAPS initiative in helping them focus on achieving success in their future endeavors.

In April, members of the NAPS education committee will interview applicants for five scholarships offered by the association.

Broadway actor coaches homeschoolers

The Norther Neck Homeschool Association's children were coached by Christopher Wynkoop, a recently retired professional actor, last week at their rehearsal of "the Little Princess," a play to be performed Saturday, April 1, at 6:30 p.m. at White Stone Church of the Nazarene.

Wynkoop helped the students better understand their roles and their relationships with other characters. He also demonstrated the basics of body language on stage.

Wynkoop's love of the theatre began at age five after seeing Jean Arthur and Boris Karloff in "Peter Pan." He majored in drama at Tulane University and graduated from the American Academy of Performing Arts.

Immediately after graduation, he landed a leading role in the national tour of "The Happiest Millionaire."

Since then he has performed in over 80 cities in tours of "1776," "South Pacific," "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," and "The King and I."

In roles ranging from Neil Simon comedies to Greek tragedies, he has performed in many Broadway plays including "Anna Christie,"and "" "Moonlight."

He also has performed in six movies including "Ghostbusters" and many TV episodes, including some from "Law and Order" and "NYPD Blues."

The play is free and open to the public.

The Kilmarnock Garden Club offers scholarship

The Kilmarnock Garden Club will offer a $500 scholarship to a graduating senior, a General Equivalency Diploma recipient, or current college student interested in obtaining a higher education or training in environmental conservation or horticultural studies, as well as biology or marine biology.

To be eligible, the applicant must be from Lancaster or Northumberland counties, have a 2.5 GPA or higher and be a full time student enrolled in or has applied to a college level curriculum. The deadline for submitting the application is May 1.

Applications may be obtained from Lancaster High School counselor Barbara Smith, the Northumberland High School counselor K. Hundley or from Kilmarnock Garden Club scholarship chairman Jenny Saam or call 462-3456.

Factors to be considered in selecting the scholarship recipients will include scholastic ability, financial need, extracurricular activities, demonstrated leadership, integrity and responsibility.

The Kilmarnock Garden Club organized in 1967 with a goal to stimulate interest in home gardens, to encourage civic beauty and roadside beautifications, to aid in the protection and conservation of natural resources and to contribute to and support the local community.

Mad Dogs win again

Last Friday, the Mad Dogs Brain Bowl team at Lancaster Middle School won its second contest in the ongoing series which helps students prepare for SOL exams. From left are Thomas Morning, De'Jon Savoy, Shaq Coles and Tyler Shirk. The next Brain Bowl will be Friday, March 31, at the Lancaster Middle School Theater at 9 a.m. The public is welcome.

Transition forum to help students find their niche

A transition forum to help students and families plan for their transition from school to adulthood will be held Wednesday, April 5, from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. at Lancaster High School.

The forum is sponsored by Lancaster Public Schools, Employment Resources Incorporated and the Northern Neck Transition Council.

The sponsors urge high school students, special education students, parents, teachers, public school administrators and community service providers to participate. Registration will begin at 3:15 p.m.; vendor fairs will open at 3:30 p.m.

Vendors will include the Virginia Department of Rehabilitative Services, Middle Peninsula-Northern Neck Community Services Board, Rappahannock Community College, Employment Resources Incorporated, the Virginia Employment Commission, Northern Neck Technical Center and Bank of Lancaster.

A spaghetti dinner will be served and there will be door prizes. Admission is free.

Break-out sessions will address the transition process, estate planning, budgeting and finances, career planning, job search strategies, support employment, career and technical schools, how DRS helps with employment and how to get into college.

For more information, or to register, call 493-1200.

Watermen's association offers scholarship

The Virginia Twin Rivers Watermen's Association (VTRWA) offers a $1,000 scholarship and two $500 scholarships to graduating seniors from Northern Neck high schools.

The scholarships will be payable to the recipient's institution of higher education upon proof of enrollment in an accredited public or private, college or university, 2-year or 4-year program for fall 2006.

The application deadline is April 15. The scholarship winner(s) will be announced by May 2006.

The association is a membership organization and collective voice for the watermen's community in the Northern Neck. Goals are to facilitate the establishment of legislative guidelines that positively impact watermen and support the operation of high quality seafood industries in Virginia: to promote the growth and success of watermen as a viable occupation; to provide networking opportunities, services, and resources for the community; and, to be an advocacy group that addresses the diverse and changing needs of watermen in the Northern Neck.

Ultimately, according to an association press release, VTRWA aims to raise awareness, build collaborative relationships and enhance appreciation for watermen by educating our community.

Scholarship applicants must posses a scholastic record reflecting a proven ability to succeed at a college or university level. The student must show evidence of leadership, character qualities and positive community/school contributions.

An applicant must be a child or relative of a waterman.

The submission packet must include a completed application form, a high school transcript, two letters of recommendation (one from a school official, administrator, counselor, or teacher), a description of the applicant's career and personal goals, and an essay of no more than 500 words addressing one of the following topics:

• The positive impact that a waterman/watermen have had on the applicant's life.

• The environmental protection issues and conservation efforts that affect watermen in the Northern Neck.

• The difference the applicant can make in the plight of watermen's livelihoods.

Fnalists may be called for an interview by telephone or in person by a scholarship committee.

The completed application packet must be sent to Virginia Twin Rivers Waterman's Association, P.O. Box 15, Mount Holly, VA 22524.

For more information, contact Iris Lane at 472-2215, or Ilane2000@cs.com; or Barbara Carpenter at 472-4103, or bcarpenter@rivnet.net.

Tanisha Bea (above) was named to the fall Dean's List at Marymount University in Arlington. Bea is studying in the School of Education and Human Services. She is a 2004 graduate of Northumberland High School. She is the daughter of Portia Bea of Heathsville and Welford Bromley of Lottsburg.

Learning from errors, Red Devils should improve

by Lisa Hinton-Valdrighi

Avoiding errors may be the biggest obstacle for Collin Rice's varsity Red Devil baseball team this spring.

A couple of untimely mistakes resulted in Lancaster's third loss of the year over the weekend at the annual RGH Tournament in Deltaville.

"We have to begin to make the routine plays and play better defense," said Rice. "I have faith in them, that they'll come around."

Lancaster held a 3-0 lead over Middlesex going into the bottom of the sixth inning in the first round of the tournament last Thursday when an error scored two runs. In their last at-bat, the Chargers tied the contest then got a two-run homer from Travis Crump with two outs for the 5-3 win.

The Devils won the consolation game, 8-1, over Washington & Lee on Friday.

"We have to get people on base and have to step it up defensively and back our pitchers up," said Rice. "It's pretty basic, I know, but that's what it's going to take to improve and be successful in this league."

Rice, who lost three from last year's squad, returns six, including four returning starters. He brings up eight other JV grads to complete the roster.

"They're just waiting to break out," said Rice. "The potential is all there. We always start off slow in the beginning."

Lancaster is off to a 2-3 start after losses to Middlesex, King George and Mathews. The Devils have beaten Charles City and Washington & Lee.

Junior returner William Saunders will be the ace on the mound, leading a four-man pitching staff. Despite Lancaster's loss, Saunders threw an impressive sixth and two-thirds innings against Middlesex, retiring 11 batters at the plate, giving up only three hits and walking four. Sophomore newcomer Adam Benson recorded the win against Washington & Lee, striking out nine, walking three and allowing one hit in seven innings of work.

Sophomore Jonathan Somers will also see considerable time on the mound; he pitched in two of Lancaster's first five games. Somers went all six innings in a 7-0 loss to King George. He had five strikeouts, six walks and two hits.

Somers received little help from the field in the blanking; the Devil defense made five errors in the outing.

Saunders gave up three hits, walked seven and struck out four in four innings of a 17-9 loss to Mathews. Lancaster was up 7-6 when Somers came in, but the Devils gave up seven runs in the sixth inning for the loss.

"We're going to rely on William's arm a lot," said Rice. "But Adam and Jonathan are good pitchers too. The only problem is we're dealing with inexperience at this level with them."

Senior returner Jonathan Frith completes the pitching staff. He allowed four hits, fanned nine and walked two in Lancaster's 15-5 season-opening win over Charles City.

Returning to start in the infield will be seniors Josh Jett at second and Tim Blake at third and junior Jonathan George behind the plate.

Back to start in the outfield will be senior James Jackson.

Among junior newcomers, Cleon Rice will start at first and Michael Saunders at short.

Playing outfield at various times will be juniors Trevor Henderson, Miles Smith and Kyle Reid.

Junior Nathan Blake will get playing time at second base.

T. Blake led Lancaster at bat over the weekend, going 3-for-3 with two RBI and two runs scored in the win over Washington & Lee. George knocked a two-run homer and was 1-for-3 with two RBI and two runs.

Josh Patterson's JV team is seeking its first win.

The Devils have gotten off to a disappointing 0-2 start with losses to Mathews and King George.

Patterson, the JV team's new head coach, will rely on a handful of returning sophomores to lead his squad.

A pitching staff of five includes sophomore returner Ryan Reynolds, sophomore Jack Jackson, freshmen Sam Brockman and Malcolm Carter and eighth- grader Ty Laws.

Playing the infield at various times will be freshmen Kevin Wilkins, Josh Pittman, Brockman and Carter and sophomores Lee Kuykendall and Reynolds.

In the outfield will be sophomores Cody Carter and Clinton Bennett and freshmen Jake Herring, Dasmine Fisher, Joe Cox and Micheal Newton.

Lady Indians tally a win, a loss in soccer

The Northumberland High girls soccer teams opened their seasons March 17 with a split against Group AA Caroline.

The JV Lady Indians picked up a 1-0 win, while the Lady Cavaliers edged Northumberland's varsity, 1-0.

Twenty minutes into the first half of the JV game, a through pass from midfielder Sam Haynie sent forward Clara Beretta past the Caroline defense. Beretta beat the keeper with a shot into the side of the goal.

The Indian offense was led by midfielders Fenton Crowther and Megan Brent and forward Haley Dawson.

Goalkeeper Jessica Boarman had seven saves and several steals in the shutout performance.

Top defenders included Ashley Lee and Sarah Sinclair and midfield sweeper Caitlin Bradley.

In the varsity game, Northumberland's defense broke down only once, allowing Caroline to score the game-winning goal in the second half.

The Indians had an opportunity to tie the contest, but missed a penalty kick wide right.

Leading the NHS defense were Farren Keyser, Veronica Brennan, Abby Long and Sydnee Baker. Keeper Kaci Cockrell had seven saves.

Lisa Roberts led the NHS offense with four shots on goal.

Ashley Welch, Lacie Deihl and Jessica Vanecek kept the pressure on Caroline's defense, at one point helping to keep the Lady Cavaliers in their half of the field for over five minutes.

Northumberland, which started a girls soccer program last year, will play a schedule that includes Group AA King George and James Monroe and private schools from Fredericksburg. The only Northern Neck District opponent is Washington & Lee, which recently organized.

SOCCER SCHEDULE

April 3, King George (5:30 p.m.)
April 4, Washington & Lee (6 p.m.)

Swann pitches for East Carolina

Freshman Brooke Swann fanned eight batters last Saturday to pick up her fourth win of the season and lead East Carolina's softball team to a 4-0 win over Buffalo in the Pirate Invitational.

Swann, a 2005 graduate of Northumberland High School, is the first female athlete in the Northern Neck District to receive a full scholarship to a Division I school.

As one of four pitchers on the ECU staff, Swann picked up her fourth shutout in five starts to improve to 4-2 on the season.

She is the daughter of Warren and Bonnie Swann of Callao.

Community college fields softball team

Rappahannock Community College recently established a women's softball program.

In an inaugural doubleheader at the Richmond County Little League Field March 22, Southern Virginia University shut-out the Gulls, 9-0 and 16-0.

However, the games were noteworthy. Kathryn Brann threw the first pitch for the Gulls and Maria Passagaluppi made the first hit.

"It's a dream come true." said RCC president Dr. Elizabeth "Sissy" Crowther.

She thanked Gulls softball team coach Reggie Brann of Richmond County, RCC head baseball coach Wade Johnson and RCC dean of student development Robert Griffin, for the energy and enthusiasm they have contributed to the organizational process.

A complete schedule has not been determined. However, the Gulls will play Southern Virginia University in Buena Vista Tuesday, April 4.

Safety course graduates 12 boaters

Twelve boaters completed the Coast Guard Auxiliary Boating Skills and Seamanship course March 21. Each was awarded a certificate by Flotilla 33 commander Rita Theisen.

Instructors Bill Johnson and Don Gallagher will offer the class again April 22 and June 3. A study guide and compact disc are available for home study.

A half-day course, "How to read a chart," will be offered May 13. The course will provide the boater with the knowledge to interpret the valuable information found on a nautical chart including latitude and longitude, aids to navigation, water depth, bottom type, magnetic variations affecting the compass, chart scales and bridge clearances. Text and training chart are included.

Another half-day course on Navigation GPS will be offered May 20. The course is for boaters desiring to better understand their GPS equipment, its operation, limitations, and how to use it more effectively. Setting and using waypoints also will be covered.

All courses will be at the Lancaster Community Library in Kilmarnock.

To enroll, call Bill Johnson at 435-2254, or billjac@crosslink.net. For information about vessel safety exams, contact Jim Wroth at 435-0376, or jim.wroth@us.army.mil. For membership information, contact Mike Sachen at 438-9202.

Sutphen honored

The Rappahannock River Yacht Club recently awarded posthumous Honorary Membership to Harold "Hal" Sutphen. The distinction is reserved for individuals who have made "exceptionally meritorious contributions to the club, outstanding, unique and noteworthy accomplishments in sailboat racing and cruising nationally and/or internationally over an extended period of time." From left are commodore Blaine Liner, Wendy Wittington, Helen Sutphen, Suzanne Maheu and A.T. "Chis" Christensen

Backus speaks to yacht club

Reedville Fishermen's Museum executive director Chuck Backus (left) spoke to the Rappahannock River Yacht Club March 18 about the roster of family- and community-oriented museum activities and events for 2006. RRYC commodore Blaine Liner welcomed Backus and identified the museum's location on a marine chart.

Norfolk man wins race car auctioned by cancer survivor

Survivor Kenneth Owens reminds everyone that March is Colon Cancer Awareness Month.

He is marking the 5th anniversary of his second——and last—colon cancer surgery with the auctioning of his 2003 Nissan 350Z race car at www.eBay.com.

The auction ended last Wednesday with 23 bids. The winner was Tim Hunt of Norfolk with a bid of $19,331. Proceeds were pledged to The National Colorectal Cancer Research Alliance.

Their mission is to educate the public about early detection and screening, to research ways to prevent and to cure colon cancer, and to better care for those living with this disease.

Men ages 50 years or older, and younger men with a family history of colon cancer, are urged to undergo screening, said Owens.

He and his wife, Linda, live in Richmond and White Stone. Owens is the grandson of the late Dow and Lucy Thrift of Locust Hill. His parents are Louise and Hugh Owens of Richmond and White Stone.

Owens also is the nephew of Syd and Dolly Thrift of Kilmarnock, and the nephew of Lucy and Richard Chenery of Richmond and Topping.

Hunt will race the Nissan in SCCA National Races.

Audubon chapter to meet after class

On Monday, April 3, at 6:30 p.m., the Northern Neck Audubon Society (NNAS) will present the second in a series of five birding classes. A monthly meeting will follow, beginning with refreshments at 7:30 p.m.

The class, "Narrowing the Possibilities," will be conducted by former educator and long-time NNAS member Bob Adriance. He will introduce participants to a system for visually classifying birds by the identification of field marks. Time allowing, the class will include a practice session. Participants are advised to bring a pencil or pen.

At the meeting, the speaker will be U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist Sandy Spencer. She will present a program on marsh wrens, based on research she conducted in 1998 and 1999 at Dyke Marsh National Wildlife Preserve, a remnant freshwater tidal marsh on the upper Potomac River, and similar marshes from Mason Neck to the fall line.

Dyke Marsh is home to a remnant population of fewer than 100 marsh wrens, all that remains of a once-thriving species that populated the formerly extensive tidal marsh habitat along the Potomac shoreline of the Washington, D.C./northern Virginia area.

Spencer will discuss her studies which included estimations of population size, breeding territory locations and size, reproductive success, habitat selection factors for males and females, causes of nest failures, and use of different nest substrates.

She found that only 27 percent of the available habitat of Dyke Marsh's 358 acres was apparently suitable and used for nesting territory, and found no other marsh wren populations on the upper Potomac. Her studies led her to conclude that the Dyke Marsh population could be at risk over the long term and that continued monitoring of the population is needed. She recommends the restoration of lost Dyke Marsh habitat.

Both the class, which is open to all area residents and requires no pre-registration, and the meeting will be held at Grace Episcopal Church in Kilmarnock. Class participants are urged to stay for the meeting.

Christchurch School Golf Classic planned

The Christchurch School 2006 Golf Classic will be held May 5 at The Tides Inn Golden Eagle Golf Course near Irvington.

Event committee chairman Will Butler recently announced The Tides Inn and The Golden Eagle Golf Course are platinum sponsors, Chesapeake Bank is a gold sponsor, the Sports Centre is a silver sponsor, and the Comtel Wireless Inc. and Willaby's are bronze sponsors.

The format will be captain's choice. All golfers and corporate teams are welcome. The registration fee is $100 per golfer, four golfers per team. The registration fee includes 18 holes of golf with cart, free use of the driving range and putting green, a cart lunch, beverages and prizes.

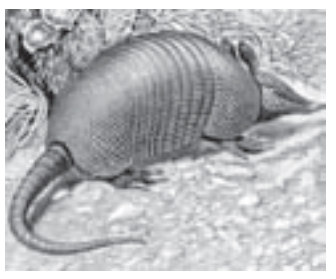
Dinner will be provided at the end of the day with presentation of awards and prizes. Proceeds support the students and faculty of Christchurch School.

For more information, call 758-2306 ext. 133, or e-mail rbutts@christchurchschool.org.

Window On Wildlife

by Joyce Fitchett Russell

He is a hunter, a good one. He has many trophies mounted, but not room for his latest, an armadillo. Can you guess who has the honor of keeping the treasure temporarily?



Armadillo

On the chest in our living room is the oddest mammal, according to my Golden Guide for Mammals. It is mostly covered by bony plates, except for legs and ears. For protection, most dig a hole for the night. Its favorite food is insects. The author of my source of information says the armadillo's flesh is tasty, flavored like pork. Its length is 30 inches and weight, 15 pounds.

What a treasure!

Pack 235 holds Pinewood Derby

Cub Scout Pack 235 of White Stone recently held its annual Pinewood Derby. James Coleman won first place, William Clarke was second and Cole Schomer was third. Alex Alderks, Sam Friday, Marques Kelley and Danny McGrath will be crossing over to Boy Scout Troop 235. From left are (front row), Graham Shivers, Weston Schomer and Elijah Lewis; (next) William Clarke, Cole Schomer, Avery Shivers and Friday; (next row) Coleman, Greyson Clark, Gavin Wright, Drew Deskin, Michael McGrath and DeAndre Kelley; (next row) Sam Bouis, Alderks, Danny McGrath and Marques Kelley.

Lions schedule tournament

The Lancaster County Lions Club will host a charity golf tournament at the Tartan Golf Course in Weems May 10.

To participate, call tournament chairman Dixon Foster at 435-1171, or president Ed Kidwell at 436-1905, prior to the registration deadline May 2.

The fee for entering the tournament is $65 per person, or $260 per team. Registration will begin at 11:30 a.m. with lunch at noon. There will be a shotgun start at 1 p.m.

The purpose of the tournament is to raise funds for various charitable activities of the club, including providing eye exams, eyeglasses and hearing aids to those in the county who cannot afford to pay for these services themselves.

The club also conducts diabetes awareness programs, provides several scholarships to deserving Lancaster High School graduates, supports youth league teams, conducts the Bland Music Contest, collects and delivers non-perishable food baskets at Christmas time and collects used eyeglasses for re-cycling.

The club, currently 48 strong and growing, is always looking for civic minded individuals who are willing to contribute their time. Interested individuals should contact the membership chairman, George Crenshaw, at 436-0032.

Jones is high point rider

Meghan Jones, a member of the James Madison University equestrian team in Harrisonburg, was the high point rider at the recent Intercollegiate Horse Show Association competition at the Barracks Stable at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

Jones placed first in the novice over fences class and second in the walk, trot, canter class.

Each class is judged on the rider's equitation. The horses for the riders are drawn randomly before each class.

Jones will compete in the regional zone competition April 9 at Sweetbriar College in Roanoke. This is the preliminary competition to the national event which will be held in Harrisburg, Pa., May 4 to 6.

Jones is a senior at JMU, majoring in interior design. She has been secretary of the equestrian team for the past two years. She is the daughter of Roberta and Steve Jones of Heathsville.

Travel lift operator, Mike Knight and technician, John Walden prepare to launch one of over a hundred yachts currently in their boat yard.

Deltaville Boatyard springs into action!

Early Spring-like weather has accelerated the pace of yacht commissioning at Deltaville Boatyard, located on Jackson Creek. Power boats, sail boats, Deadrise work boats, fishing boats, skiffs, barges, rowboats and just about any other kind of watervessel you can imagine are busily being prepped for launching over the next several weeks. Rigging, painting, polishing, sanding, welding, sewing, to name only a few, are common activities seen being performed by the boatyard's experienced staff of technicians. Deltaville Boatyard's newly refitted and overhauled travel lift is already working overtime as it moves boats in preparation of the spring rush.

Keith Ruse and his American Boat and Yacht Council (ABYC) certified technicians take great pride in their jobs, especially during this time of year. Like their customers, they get genuinely excited at the prospect of warmer days and sun-kissed evenings spent on the water. The opportunity to be in the business of helping the literally hundreds of captains prepare their boats for a successful and safe year on the water is truly appreciated by all of the boat yard crew-members.

In addition to offering high levels of customer service, Deltaville Boatyard is also focused on diversifying the technical services they are able to offer its customers. Already a Yanmar dealer, over the winter months they have become dealers for Volvo and Raymarine and have become certified in Harken sailing hardware installation and maintenance. Furthermore, through strong relationships with quality marine supply and service companies they are able to acquire parts essential to their customers in a reliable and efficient manner. Accordingly, they are proud to perform or coordinate practically any yacht service for vessels landing at their yard by sea or land.

Check out their website at: www.deltavilleboatyard.com or call 776-8900 if you would like to talk about services for your boat and how they might be of assistance.

ICYCC camps focus on golf and tennis

The Indian Creek Yacht and Country Club Junior Sports Camp completed its 15th season with 210 campers attending nine week-long sport camps.

Five afternoon camps were attended by campers ages 10 to 17 years, who preferably had previous experience in tennis and/or golf. They were I PM tennis and I PM golf, from June 20 to 24, and III PM golf and III PM tennis, from July 11 to July 15. These campers received 2 and 2/3 hours of instruction in the sport of their choice with a swim break halfway through and a meal. In IV PM tennis and golf, the campers received 1 and 1/3 hour lessons in each sport with a swim break between and a meal.

Instruction in golf was provided by golf pro Kevin Aines and golf instructors Michael Muller and Robert Keyes. Tennis instruction was given by ICYCC tennis pro, Pat Abenante, assisted by Scott Davidson, Nina Panzetta and Julia Byrd.

Swimming instruction was given by Liz Seigler and assisted by Eleanor Smith and Taylor Nelson.

Ryan Joyner

Joyner receives award

Ryan Joyner, an eighth-grader at Lancaster Middle School, was presented the Dave Brown Memorial "Wrestler of the Year" award March 18 at the Peninsula Youth Wrestling League Tournament at Gloucester High School.

The award is presented each year to an eighth-grader who is nominated by his coach and then voted on by the league coaches.

The league includes 12 teams.

Joyner has been wrestling for five years and has won numerous medals and ribbons. He also received the "Rookie of the Year" award, the highest GPA award and "Best all Around" award.

He is an honor roll student, a Junior Beta Club member, a member of the LMS Band and Jazz Band. He is working on his Life Rank with the Boy Scouts of Troop 242 in Kilmarnock. He is a member of Kilmarnock Baptist Church.

His younger brother, Matthew, has wrestled for three years and won a bronze medal at the PYWL Tournament in the 64.3 pound midget-weight class.

The brothers are the sons of Bill and Janet Joyner of Lancaster.

Registration is open for 2006 senior games

Registration is now open for the 2006 Virginia Senior Games. The games, which feature over 50 sporting events for competitors age 50 and over, will be held May 11 through 14 at various venues in Virginia Beach.

The Virginia Senior Games serve as the qualifying venue for the 2007 Summer National Senior Games in Louisville June 22 through July 8, 2007. This event typically attracts over 12,000 athletes from 49 states. To qualify for National Senior Games, athletes must have qualified in a 2006 State Games.

The most popular sports at the games are basketball, cycling, golf, softball, tennis, surfing, swimming, track and field and volleyball. A full list of events is available in the athlete information and registration book. Get one free from the Virginia Recreation and Park Society, 6038 Cold Harbor Road, Mechanicsville, VA 23111; 730-9447. The registration deadline is April 28.

The three-day event also features a health expo, luncheon and celebration of athletes on May 12. The celebration of athletes and the Virginia Senior Games are open and free to spectators.

Gang lessons

Virginia assistant attorney general Michael Favale stressed last Thursday that urban street gangs like the Crips and Bloods may not be prevalent in counties across the Northern Neck and Middle Peninsula. However, gangs can be found in rural communities. Favale and other speakers from the attorney general's office, conducted a "youth and gangs in Virginia" presentation for about 81 local law enforcement officers and school personnel at Lancaster Middle School in Kilmarnock. Virginia State Police show continued success in stamping out insurance fraud

The number of arrests for insurance fraud and related crimes in Virginia reached 306 in 2005. This represents an increase of 150 percent from 2004, according to the 2005 Annual Report recently released by the Insurance Fraud Program (IFP) of the Virginia State Police (VSP).

The statistics released for 2005 by the IFP show the number of notifications received reached 1,638, an increase of more than 18 percent. In addition to the record number of arrests and notifications, convictions for the crime of insurance fraud increased by 20 percent in 2005. The 2005 Insurance Fraud Annual Report can be downloaded at www.stampoutfraud.com.

The VSP investigates fraud involving property, casualty and workers' compensation insurance. In 2005, insurance fraud special agents initiated 357 investigations, up 28 percent from 2004. Seventy percent of the property fraud cases involved motor vehicle and auto fraud, while workers' compensation and motor vehicle fraud made up 73 percent of the injury and casualty insurance fraud cases.

Insurance fraud is ranked second behind tax evasion as the most common and costly white-collar crime and adds as much as $1,000 to the costs of goods and services a family pays each year. Virginia citizens also pay between $200 and $1,000 per year in additional premiums due to fraudulent insurance claims.

The VSP is committed to "Stamp Out" insurance fraud occurring in the Commonwealth. Report fraudulent insurance schemes or suspects to Virginia State Police Insurance Fraud Program or the insurance fraud hotline at 1-877-62FRAUD (1-877-623-7283), or visit www.stampoutfraud.com. Tipsters may also be eligible to receive a reward of up to $25,000.

Museum holds annual meeting

The Morattico Waterfront Museum held its second annual general membership meeting, Brunswick stew luncheon and sale March 18. Kelly O'Brien (right) and assistants Jesse Johnson and Mike Driscoll, all of Appomattox, provided the outdoor cooker and presided over the preparation of the stew.

Virginia ranks eighth in prostate cancer death rates

New statistics show Virginia ranks eighth nationally when it comes to prostate cancer death rates, as more than 34.7 men per 100,000 will die from prostate cancer in 2006.

A major factor in the Virginia prostate cancer death rates is the high population of African Americans, who are already at increased risk for prostate cancer.

"African Americans have a mortality rate about 2.5 times greater than white men," said National Prostate Cancer Coalition chief executive officer Richard N. Atkins, M.D.

"Local elected officials need to step up to save lives," said Dr. Atkins. ""Everyone can help make prostate cancer a memory, by spreading the word that annual screenings work, and supporting the federal funding for the advancement of treatments."

About 700 men are expected to die from prostate cancer this year in Virginia while 6,000 will be diagnosed. The nation as a whole is experiencing some good news when it comes to prostate cancer: deaths are down 10 percent while the number of diagnosed cases is up signifying the annual early detection works and is saving lives.

"When caught early, prostate cancer has a 99 percent survival rate," said Dr. Atkins."Most experts attribute that to annual early detection and advances in treatment."

The prostate cancer mortality rates for white males (per 100,000) is 27.7, for African Americans, 68.1; for Hispanics, 23.0; for Asian Americans, 12.1; and for American and Alaska Natives, 18.3

Magazine showcases Jamestown

For travelers to and through Virginia, a copy of the free, 68-page, four-color magazine, Virginia Secrets, is a must. It provides an insider's look at the Jamestown 1607 story.

The magazine showcases the new facilities at the two different Jamestown sites—Historic Jamestowne and Jamestown Settlement, providing details of the discovery of the original 1607 fort in 1996 and the ongoing archaeology and artifacts, now on display at Historic Jamestowne. In addition, readers get information on the special events surrounding this year's 225th anniversary of the Battle of Yorktown celebrated nearby at the Yorktown Battlefield, the Yorktown Victory Center and the historic Yorktown community.

A special section on "Family Travel on the Road to Jamestown, from the Chesapeake Bay, Hampton Roads and Virginia's Eastern Shore," highlights Busch Gardens Williamsburg, voted the world's "Most Beautiful Theme Park" for 15 consecutive years; Newport News, likely named for the 1607 Captain Christopher Newport; Virginia Beach, where the 1607 settlers first came ashore in the New World; and First Landing State Park, the most visited park in Virginia's park system, where it is believed settlers dropped anchor on April 26, 1607.

Another section, "Inns, Wines and Shops on the Road to Jamestown, from Central and Northern Virginia," highlights Virginia's Wine Trails; Northern Virginia's premium outlet malls; historic inns and B&Bs; Henricus, the 1611 settlement site south of Richmond; and Virginia's Civil War Trails and Civil Rights in Education Heritage Trail as well as spa/shopping packages.

A third section, "The Great Outdoors on the Road to Jamestown, from Shenandoah, Blue Ridge Highlands and Heart of Appalachia,"covers recreation and attractions such as the Crooked Road Music Trail, Shenandoah National Park, Skyline Drive, the Appalachian Trail, the George Washington and Jefferson National Forests, the Natural Tunnel that William Jennings Bryan called "the eighth wonder of the world;" and the Virginia Creeper National Recreation Trail, among others.

For anyone traveling with children, the "Kids at Play" section is a good Colonial companion, followed by a 2006 calendar of events, a list of America's 400th Anniversary Signature Events and an explanation of the Jamestown 2007 Community Partners Events. The magazine begins and ends with the "Windows to the New World—An English Perspective, A Virginia Indian Perspective and An African-American Perspective," all commemorating America's 400th Anniversary: Jamestown 2007.

Rotary guests discuss building code awareness

Entrepreneur Shawn Donahue and building inspector Steve Daum of Lancaster County recently presented a program to the Northern Neck Rotary Club on the importance of being aware of building codes in the development of business property.

Knowledge of and planning for code requirements are of particular importance when changing the use of a building from one category to another, they said.

Donahue asked the members to consider the business trend a few years ago along North Main Street. Many businesses had closed and buildings stood empty. He advised that businesses will have to change their models and perform in a different way with the advent of a Wal-Mart and possibly other chains.

Business people should consider filling niches not addressed by chain retailers, or provide services not otherwise available, Donahue said.

As a resident, he may lament the impending increase in traffic, but as a businessman he must consider how he can attract the 4,000 additional shoppers.

Donahue cautioned that just because the town granted a business license, a business could not move forward with construction or alterations until county building codes are met.

When a building changes use, the property must be brought up to codes for the new use, Daum said. This can add significant initial expenses to opening a new business.

Daum said that the most important thing a business should do when renovating an existing building, or building a new one, is to contact the building inspector's office. The inspector will work with the merchant to avoid unforeseen issues and seek ways to help modify the structure to accommodate the proposed use.

Donahue and others commended Daum for his willingness to research difficult questions and provide guidance.

The Northern Neck Rotary Club meets for breakfast at Lee's Restaurant Wednesdays at 7:30 a.m.

ment of Environmental Quality is responsible for monitoring water quality, the task is bigger than their resources can manage, said Bill Perry of the RC&D. Volunteer help is invaluable in gathering more data, he added.

Those interested in monitoring should call Perry at 443-1118. The RC&D will work with the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay (ACB) to train volunteers to perform the sampling. The ACB has established protocols for water monitoring and collects the data in addition to helping with volunteer training.

Volunteers will need to sample water at their assigned site two times per month. Each monitoring session will require about an hour. Volunteers can be matched with sampling sites convenient to them.

This is a great way to become involved in the outdoors while performing a worthwhile service, said Perry.
