Sailing builds young spirits

For parents and grandparents looking for a growth-stimulating summer experience for their young ones, the Rappahannock River Yacht Club welcomes the participation of community youngsters ages 9 to 12 years in its 2006 Junior Sailing Program for Beginners and Advanced Beginners, July 17 to 21. Instruction will be at RRYC on Carter's Creek.

"Junior Sailing programs have nurtured many a youth through life-shaping experiences in the guise of a fun activity. They join kids their own age, learn a sport in the sunshine, and do so in the reassuring presence of young adults just enough older to provide direction but not so old as to tune out," said program director Dee Byrne.

RRYC has retained instructors Ron, Ruthanna and Quentin Jenkins to teach Optimist Dinghy sailing. Ron holds a Level One US Sailing Dinghy Instructor's license and has taught beginner Optimist sailing at Fishing Bay Yacht Club for the past three years. Quentin and Ruthanna have traveled widely to regattas in recent years in the Chesapeake, Buzzard's Bay and Canada and Quentin finished 5th in high points for 2005 in the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association postings.

A Junior Regatta on July 28 will mark the "graduation" of participants and test their newly acquired skills against those of sailors from other area Junior programs. For those wishing to continue building skill, the instructors will provide introductions to sailing programs offering higher level instruction. The program sails 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and includes a daily post-sailing dip in the club pool. Participants provide their own lunch and approved life vests. Fee for non-club member is $295. Applications for the program are online (rryc.org) or call Byrne at 436-9270. The deadline for receiving applications is June 1.

The nautical images of Frank Beken, English photographic pioneer

19th Century Cutters, 1887

Frank Beken's compelling perspective owes itself to art and science. When Beken realized that cameras were not suited to photography at sea, he designed one to withstand conditions aboard his floating studio, a 14' dinghy. The two-handed camera had three settings – Dinghies, Yachts, Liners – and was fired by biting a rubber ball. Beken reproductions and postcards now at Bay Country Studios.

Down to earth gourmet at the Good Eats Café

by Joan McBride

Local maps say the corner of Routes 202 and 203 near Kinsale is Gray's Corner, but I agree with the man who answered the phone at Good Eats Café that it should be called Good Eats Café Corner.

And I mean as in really good eats! When someone takes the time to "frizz" the lowly, but immensely flavorful leek, you know you're in for a great meal.

We had been warned to arrive early at this very popular nine-year-old dinner spot which is open Thursday through Sunday nights from April to November, so we arrived shortly after 4:30 p.m. on a balmy and beautiful May evening, relaxing on the shady porch amongst the cleverly colorful flower planters.

By the time the front door opened just a few minutes after 5 p.m., about 10 customers had collected to stream into the colorful and tidy two-room café decorated in something like a cheerful and stylish flower-child theme, which owner Sally Rumsey admits sort of evolved over the years.

She said the café's sun logo inspired patrons to donate all manner of representations of suns, moons, and stars from near or far travels giving the popular spot a celestial feel. Amazingly, our dining room boasted two representations of Van Gogh's Starry Night, one a print and another an homage to the original.

We were lucky to sit near a "curiosity shelf" located in the rapidly filling up larger dining room vibrantly accented with a yellow and orange color scheme anchored by a crisp black and white floor. This is not a place where you could massage a depressed mood for long.

The flowers in front of the Good Eats Cafe display some of the whimsical charm abounding inside.

I especially enjoyed scanning the shelves to see possibly the world's largest metal whisk, several dolls, and old food tins with one proudly displaying the name "Bevans fresh OYSTERS".

Owners Rumsey and Stephen Andersen, former personal chef and restauranteur respectively, not only plan, create, cook, and sometimes serve their exotic fare—which they like to call "river fusion food" inspired by the Chesapeake Bay area—they even grow their own salad greens and asparagus.

Seafood dishes are plentiful on the menu. Rumsey reports "everything is fresh," explaining they get their soft shell crabs from Jenkins delivered every day, while they get other items from O'Biers.

Both owners trained in the culinary arts, Rumsey in Rhode Island, and Anderson in New York. And it shows.

My companion and I started our meal with a wonderful Salad Soleil, a mixture of those home-grown greens, strawberries, slivered toasted almonds, and feta cheese all coated with a rich oriental vinaigrette dressing. ($5) Other items from the appetizer menu included CrabPot Stickers and Caesar salad.

Dinner selections included specials like Steak and Poivre, soft shell crabs, Lamb Risotto, and Salmon Oscar along with regulars like catfish, prime rib, chicken pasta, Scallops Sublime, and a surf 'n' turf selection aptly named Fantasticks.

I had the scallops and they were indeed sublime. Although usually preferring them quite plain and broiled or pan-fried, I now see a better way. These were prepared with tomato chunks, fresh dill, and leaks in a beurre blanc sauce gloriously presented with those lightly battered and lovingly frizzed leeks scattered on the top. Fresh romano cheese grated over rice pilaf and a tasty sautéed vegetable medley completed the course. ($20)

My companion chose the very-popular entrée named Fantasticks because it featured two skewers (sticks) of grilled shrimp and a delectable grilled beef tenderloin strip on another skewer (stick). The latter was generously covered in a most exotic sauce which reminded me of a melted Heath candy bar. ($19)

When I asked our pleasant waiter Jim (who is also the dessert cook) about the sauce's unusual flavor and told him what it reminded me of, he said all the locals really like it too because "it tastes like candy."

In reality it was a portabello mushroom and port wine sauce and it was to die for.

Reminiscent of my own recipe for Mexican mole sauce (which really does have chocolate in it) the taste was infinitely richer and truly fantastic.

Raving about his dinner, my companion even pointed out the artistic and colorful presentation of his main dish: a tall bed of jasmine rice was topped with the crossed shrimp and beef skewers while the vegetable medley flirted off on one side.

To finish off our taste-sensation dinner, we chose from delectable desserts like Chocolate-Peanut Butter Pie, Key Lime Pie, a richly dense flourless chocolate torte, and our choice, The Mudslide.

Imagine a 31/2" ball of vanilla ice cream rolled in large flakes of coconut and chopped pecans, then covered with a Mexican cinnamon caramel sauce and presented in a long narrow dish with two rosettes of whipped cream on each end. ($5) It was truly a heavenly end to a dining occasion in bright and cheery surroundings whimsically punctuated by decorative celestial orbs.

Now do you see why you need to arrive early?

Important notes:

With a nod to our fast-paced times (and their often packed dining room) it's refreshing to note that their complete menu is available for take-out.

Rivah Beaches

Story and Photos
by Reid Pierce Armstrong

One of the most treasured things in Virginia's Chesapeake Bay region is a sandy beach. Some people are lucky enough to have a little spit of heaven right in their own back yard. But most visitors and residents must seek out a public beach.

The state and counties that maintain these havens don't much publicize.

"We don't really want people to know about it," states a county administrator in the Middle Peninsula regarding a county-owned beach.

The reason for this is understandable. Most of the public beaches in the area are relatively small – sometimes only 70 feet long and 15 feet wide. They are largely underutilized, remaining a place for the birds and turtles who nest there. Dune grasses and small shrubs cling to life along the shoreline, holding it together.

But, still, on a hot summer day, these beaches offer an ideal place to take the family for a picnic, a swim or even a good old-fashioned day on the beach complete with sunbrellas, coolers, books, buckets and folding chairs. The beach can be a place to sit and read or to go fishing for croaker. In the cool of the morning and evening, they offer a charming stretch for a walk, a place to watch the sunrise.

For Kori Poplin, the beach at Hughlett's Point is a perfect place to take her 2-year-old son Nathaniel. Here, he can explore, discover and adventure.

"We've been coming here since I was four months pregnant," Kori said. It's a weekend ritual for the mom and son to stroll the trails and play by the water.

Haven Beach

Keith Shamberger and his girlfriend found Bethel Beach in Mathews an ideal place to sunbathe.

"We were going to drive to Virginia Beach this weekend, " he said. "Then I found out about this place." The couple picked a sheltered spot among the dune grasses to spread their blankets and pull out their books. Even on a 60-degree day, the alcove was warm enough to soak up some rays.

Every beach in the area has its distinctive characteristics. Colonial Beach and Gloucester Point beach are ideal for parking and pulling out a ton of gear for a day on the sand. But when visiting most local beaches, plan to haul the gear for a quarter to a half mile to find the perfect spot. Use backpacks and lightweight coolers to transport stuff. Often, the best spot requires a bit of a hike down the sand.

Beaches like Hughlett's Point and Bethel Beach are Natural Area Preserves, run by the state Department of Conservation and Recreation. These beaches may have occasional wildlife closures and, with acres of land, offer ideal opportunities for long walks and exploration.

County-owned beaches are typically much smaller. They offer room to set up a few chairs and watch the kids dip their toes in the water.

Campground beaches and state park beaches may require guests to pay a fee. They often offer other facilities such as restrooms and sometimes even swimming nets to keep the stinging nettles at bay.

Whatever one's preference, a beach is never too far away in "Rivah" country.

Essentials

Water. A day in the sun can zap your body of essential fluids.

Bug spray. Biting flies tend to plague local beaches in the summer. A cool breeze can keep them at bay.

Shade. Most public beaches have few trees to hide beneath when the sun's rays are strong. Bring sunscreen.

Lifeguard. Make sure swimming is allowed. A responsible adult should act as lifeguard. Many of the area's public beaches are not patrolled by on-duty lifeguards.

Ammonia. Be wary of stinging nettles or "jellyfish," which arrive in July and August. If somebody is stung, relief can be found with vinegar, meat tenderizer or a product containing ammonia.

Gloucester

Gloucester Point Beach Park

This county-maintained beach is on the bank of the York River where it flows into the Chesapeake Bay. The 300-yard long swimming area and sandy beach offer ample room to sunbathe, wade, walk or build sand castles. A large park provides a shady, grassy picnic area and a shelter complete with bathrooms, an outdoor shower and grills. The park also has a fishing pier (no license required) and a seasonal concession stand. Located on Route 1208.

Lancaster

Westland Beach

This tiny, county-owned beach sits at the end of Windmill Point Road and is bordered on both sides by private property. Open from dawn until dusk, this beach offers just enough sand to sit and enjoy a sunrise or to catch a few rays of sun. A old steamboat wharf adds interest to the site. There is a small public parking lot, a portable bathroom and a kayak launch nearby. Located at the end of Route 695.

Mathews

Mathews County Beaches

Mathews County has made more of an effort to preserve waterfront access for the public in recent years than any other county in the Middle Peninsula or Northern Neck. With numerous public roads that end at the beach, the county is working hard to purchase and preserve as many of these spots as possible and currently owns more than a dozen access points. A map identifying all the county's public access areas is available for purchase online at visitmathews.com or by calling the county at 725-7172. Many of the beaches are small and ideal only for sitting in a beach chair, fishing, reading or soaking up some rays. The following highlights just a few of the county's best beaches.

Haven Beach

Also known as Festival Beach, this 2,000-foot long stretch of beach offers plenty of room to walk, sunbathe and picnic. The water's edge is not smooth and sandy and is not ideal for swimming. A portable bathroom and close parking area provide convenience for visitors. This is also one of the few beaches that is truly handicapped accessible. Located on Route 689.

Piankatank River Landing

Also known as Hallieford Beach, this area is a couple hundred feet long. All sand, it provides a safe swimming and play area for small children. The gently-sloping shoreline eases far out into the water, perfect for wading. There are, however, no public facilities and parking is limited. Located on Route 632.

Bethel Beach Natural Area

Bethel Beach features a long, sandy beach perfect for strolling, fishing, sunbathing or playing. A total of 105 acres make up this preserve. Rare marsh birds nest here and the globally rare northeastern tiger beetle and beach plant are both protected here. There are no public facilities at this site.Dogs must be on a leash while on the preserve and swimming is not allowed. Roadside parking is available less than 50 feet from the beach, but be prepared to walk for an ideal location to spend the day. Located on Route 609.

New Point Comfort Natural Area Preserve

At Mathews County's southern tip, New Point Comfort offers a view of the historic lighthouse that was once surrounded by 200 acres of land. The public island just north of the lighthouse is accessible only by boat at high tide. Getting there is an adventure and it's a good idea to go at high tide, although many larger boats anchor out and wade in, especially on weekends when the beach gets crowded. The island is located where the Chesapeake and Mobjack Bays meet and powerful tides push the sands around. Approach by boat from the west (Mobjack Bay) and be wary of sandbars. The island and the sandbars are changing constantly.

Middlesex

Canoe House Beach

This county-owned spit of sand is only about 70 feet long and has no public amenities. Located on Route 605 in Jamaica.

Upton's Point Marina Beach

Completely renovated by the Town of Urbanna in the aftermath of Hurricane Isabel, this 50-foot stretch of waterfront is ideal for wading, but less so for sunbathing. The sandy beach disappears at high tide. Swimmers beware, the depth drops off quickly. A portable bathroom and parking area are available for the public. Located on Virginia Street.

Northumberland

Hughlett's Point Natural Area Preserve

The landscape of this peninsula changed dramatically after Hurricane Isabel. A forested trail leads to the beach, which opens to a bony landscape of dead trees that were overtaken by the bay during the hurricane. To the left of the beach trailhead, these trees offer something of a jungle gym for walkers and children to navigate and explore. To the right, the beach opens wide and a short walk brings visitors to a section of sand ideal for sitting and watching the sun rise or the birds. High tides inundate the marsh and can block off part of the beach trail, unless you are prepared to get your feet wet. Beyond the first point, acres of beach await for walking and bird watching. More than 200 acres make up this preserve, which is home to the threatened northeastern beach tiger beetle and other rare invertebrates. Wildlife viewing platforms overlook the marsh and provide an ideal spot for bird watching. The preserve discourages sunbathing and swimming because of the harmful impact it could have on the beetles. Dogs must be restrained and there are no public facilities. Located on Route 605 off Shiloh School Road.

Vir-Mar Beach

This small bit of sand on the Potomac River is owned half by the state and half by the county and is bordered on both sides by private property. A small parking and picnic area overlooks the beach, and a steep set of stairs leads down to a beach supported by wooden groins. The beach here is not well maintained and can be narrow at high tide, but it does provide a spot to look out over the water and enjoy the breeze off the Potomac. Located on Vir-Mar Beach Road.

Richmond

Naylor's Beach

An ideal beach for swimming, Naylor's Beach is on brackish water where the sea nettles dare not venture. A gently sloping shoreline allows swimmers to wade well out into the river without dropping into deeper water. The beach here is well-suited for families, especially those with small children. Bathhouses with hot showers and bathrooms provide a place to clean up after a day in the sand. Pavilions provide a shaded area for picnics and a volleyball net, horseshoe pit and swing set provide plenty of activities for a daylong visit. The campground charges a use fee of $4 for adults, $3.50 children. Located on Route 634.

Westmoreland

Colonial Beach

Once known as the "The Playground of the Potomac," Colonial Beach used to draw bathers in their Victorian swimming costumes by the hundreds on steamboats. Today, the municipal waterfront still offers an eighth-of-a-mile of sandy beach and swimming. Public parking right in front of the beach allows for easy hauling of gear down to the beach. Public bathrooms and food vendors provide comfort and convenience for a daylong visit. A beach boardwalk offers opportunity for walking or bicycling. No pets are allowed on Colonial Beach, and police patrolling the area are very strict about this. The swimming area is not netted and stinging nettles can be a problem in July and August. Metered parking in the summer.

Westmoreland State Park

This park offers several beaches for visitors. The main beach, next to the day use parking lot, offers a half-mile of sand 15 feet wide for sunbathers to stretch out. A picnic area just behind the beach offers a place to cook up a hot lunch. Hikers and explorers might prefer to take the Big Meadows Interpretive Trail. This half-mile path offers mostly easy level walking on a dirt surface down to a 300-yard-long beach located between two cliffs. (The last part of the trail becomes steep as it descends to the beach.) The beach offers the opportunity to hunt for fossils. Ancient shark teeth wash out of the cliffs and up onto the beach and the park allows visitors to collect them. Serious fossil hunters may want to bring sand sifters. Swimming is not allowed in the Potomac River, but a swimming pool is available for cooling off. The park charges a $4 per vehicle on weekends and holidays, $3 on weekdays. Off Route 3.

Washington's Birthplace

The small stretch of beach is not the main attraction here. Most visitors come to this national monument owned and maintained by the National Park Service to view the historic sites at the birthplace of the nation's first president. But, there is a nice beach here, although it is not much publicized. The 100-foot long, 30-foot wide stretch of sand is along the Potomac River at the end of a parking lot, so bringing a beach chair, mat and cooler is practical. At low tide, visitors can hike along another narrow half-mile beach the stretches beneath a cliff. Fossil hunting, swimming and alcohol are not allowed. There are no public restrooms or water. Admission to the beach is free. A tour of the historic sites costs $4.

York

Yorktown Waterfront

Across the bridge in historic Yorktown, this 2-acre beach front provides opportunity for boating, swimming and fishing. The waterfront has restroom and shower facilities, which are open from April through October 19. Parking can be a challenge in the heat of summer, so plan to walk down the sidewalk to the beach area. There are several places to set up, but only one main swimming area between two rock jetties.

Note: Sandy islands and isthmuses make great landing sites for beaching by boat, but be warned that these and other pocket beaches in the area – though frequented by locals – may be privately owned. Seek permission from the landowners before using any site not listed in this directory. Please be respectful of neighbors and help keep our beaches clean.

New Point Comfort: Wet, wonderful and sometimes wild

by Tom Chillemi

If you go to New Point Comfort Island bring a fly swatter, the deer flies in June and July are persistent and bug spray only lasts until you go in the water and it gets washed off. The swatter should have a stout metal handle with a plastic slapper. Also, one hit with a fly swatter is sometimes not enough, deer flies are tough and will only be stunned by a single hit and get up to fight again. Confirm your kills.

Wear a shirt although they've been known to bite through thin cloth, and watch your neighbor's back. These creatures haven't eaten in their brief life and for them finding a victim is a matter of life or death. They've been waiting all week for those people with bare skin.

When a deer fly is sighted the swatter should be swished defensively as a horse does with its tail. You have to make yourself less desirable than others at the beach.

Another strategy is to stand next to a crowd, swat the fly and move away quickly and hope it finds someone else to bother. But remember, "What goes around, comes around."

Insider's tip: once you are bitten by a deer fly, which usually draws blood, other deer flies will go for the fresh opening, usually on your lower leg. All you need to do is watch the wounded spot when the hungry enemy starts buzzing. They will go for the easy opening—guaranteed.

"Committed To Providing The Finest in Industrialized Building Systems"

Welcome to Richmond County

■ Size: 203 square miles ■ Shoreline: 141.9 miles
■ Population: 8,800

History

Known commonly as the Gateway to the Northern Neck, Richmond County was established in 1692 from the old Rappahannock County.

Originally explored by Captain John Smith in 1607–1608, the county was settled in 1640 when people migrated up from settlements below the Rappahannock River. It was presumably named after the First Duke of Richmond, cousin to both King William III and Queen Mary. One of the early settlers was Colonel Moore Fauntleroy, who patented land in the county in 1650.

The first county seat was thought to be at the mouth of Little Carter's Creek, then moved to Naylors, an early river settlement. The seat was moved inland in 1730 and renamed the Richmond County Courthouse. In 1831, the name was changed to Warsaw in sympathy with the Polish struggle for independence. Warsaw was incorporated as the county's only town in 1947 and is now the site of the court house, built in 1748, and the 188-year-old clerk's office, which housed the Richmond County Museum from 1992 to 1999.

Richmond County became the Gateway to the Northern Neck in 1927 when the Downing Bridge across the Rappahannock River at Tappahannock was opened, connecting Richmond County to Essex and opening up travel to and from the Northern Neck. The bridge, which replaced 200 years of ferry service, was dedicated by Sen. Thomas Downing of the Northern Neck.

Richmond County was the home of the last president to be elected under the Articles of Confederation. In 1788, Judge Cyrus Griffin was elected president of the U.S. Congress Assembly and held that position until the U.S. Constitution was adopted and his successor, George Washington, was elected as the first President of the U. S.

William A. Jones gained recognition for Richmond County in 1916 when, in supporting self-government for all people, he authorized a bill that guaranteed independence for the Philippines. In 1924, the people of the Philippines erected a memorial at Jones' gravesite in the St. John's Episcopal Churchyard in Warsaw.

Preservation efforts receive boost

The Rosewell Foundation has received a gift of $5,000 from Dominion Resources toward its "Blueprint for Preservation" project. Alexander Smith Jr., external affairs manager for Dominion, recently presented the check at the Rosewell Visitor Center.

"We're thrilled, because this is such a big step toward ensuring that future generations will be able to experience Rosewell," said Sandy Pait, Rosewell Foundation board president.

The Dominion gift will support the development of a new long-term stabilization plan for the historic Rosewell ruin, based on up-to-date technical information and expert professional advice. "We've been working from a 1980 engineering study," said Rosewell Foundation executive director Hilarie Hicks.

The Dominion gift will help to meet the matching requirements for these grants. Colonial Virginia Bank, Ken Houtz Chevrolet-Buick, and Somerset Homes have each contributed $500 toward the matching grants.

Other businesses contributing to the challenge match include BB&T, Gloucester Realty, Peninsula Heating & Air, and Towne Bank. Additionally, over $21,000 has been donated by individual contributors.

The Rosewell Foundation must raise another $11,000 by June 15 to complete the matching requirements for its foundation grants.

Anyone wishing to contribute may send a check to the Rosewell Foundation, P.O. Box 1456, Gloucester, VA 23061, with "challenge match" written on the memo line.

For further information, contact the Rosewell Foundation at 693-2585.

One of colonial America's grandest mansions, Rosewell was built 1725-1738 and gutted by fire in 1916. Four massive chimneys, one wall, and a cellar vault are now silent witnesses to history.

Stabilized, but not rebuilt, Rosewell allows visitors to inspect 18th-century brickwork from a perspective that no intact building can offer. Its setting inspires the imagination to recreate Rosewell as three generations of the Page family knew it.

Rosewell is open to visitors from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children, with free admission to Rosewell Foundation members. Annual membership fees begin at $10. Discounted admission is available for pre-arranged groups of 20 or more.

To reach Rosewell, take Route 17 to the Little Sue store in White Marsh (8 miles north of Yorktown or 5 miles south of Gloucester Courthouse). Follow the brown directional signs to Rosewell, approximately 4 miles off Route 17.
