

McCranie to speak at museum

Senior Virginia State Trooper Patrick McCranie will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Kilmarnock Museum.

The meeting will convene at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 23, at the Bank of Lancaster Northside branch in Kilmarnock said president Carroll Lee Ashburn.

Trooper McCranie grew up in the Hampton Roads area of Virginia and graduated from Great Bridge High School in Chesapeake. The son of a retired naval officer, he has a bachelor's in sociology.

He joined the Virginia State Police in 1989 and graduated from the Academy in 1990. He was assigned to Lancaster County. His other duties with the state police include chaplain, and member of the critical incident stress management team (CISM). He also serves on the Lancaster school board and volunteers with Hospice of Virginia.

McCranie is married to the former Shauna Deihl, a teacher at Lancaster High School. They have three children ages 21, 14 and 11.

The public is invited, said Ashburn.

Andrews to address Books Alive

Author Jeff Andrews will review his new book, The Gandy Dancer, for the Books Alive program at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 26, at the Northumberland Public Library at 7204 Northumberland Highway in Heathsville.

The title refers to the slang term used for early railroad workers who laid and maintained tracks in the years before the work was done by machines, said Jay Walker.

Set in Clifton Forge, the book follows two story lines, one in the present tracing the ups and downs of the main character, journalist Mitch Corsini, and the other following the lives of two gandy dancers, African Americans George Henry and Willie McConnell, in 1936 when the town was a thriving railroad center.

The plots are a mix of thriller, love story, racism then and now, and interracial relations then and now, he said. These complicated plots, which jump back and forth, come together in the end.

"I didn't have a problem switching from one time period to another," said Andrews. "I normally wrote several chapters in one period, then flipped my frame of reference and did the same for the other time period. The back and forth didn't occur nearly as frequently for the author as it does for the reader."

Andrews points out that he puts considerable effort into researching the era and going "the extra mile" to verify the facts, both significant and small.

"I want my readers to experience the historical period depicted, not just read about it. I want them to suspend disbelief and become immersed in the living conditions, the dialects, and political and social moods, the sights, sounds and smells of that earlier period. To the extent that I am successful, I'll credit accurate research," he said.

Andrews served 20 years in the U.S. Marine Corps. He is a founding member of The Hampton Roads Writers.

A discussion, book signing and refreshments will follow the review, said Walker.

Books Alive is sponsored by the Friends of the Northumberland Library.

'unCORKED!' goes Italian

Marking its fourth year as the Northern Neck Family YMCA's signature event, unCORKED! will be held this weekend, announced co-director of development Donna McGrath.

The event opens at 7 p.m. Friday, March 22, with "Irresistibly Italian" at Specials in Kilmarnock. The fee is $75 per person.

Francesca Vajra, the daughter of Aldo and Milena Vajra of world-class winery G.D. Vajra, is one of the up and coming wine stars of Italy's Piedmonte region. She will discuss her family's wines.

Located just above Barolo, in the village of Virgine, G.D. Vajra represents a beautiful diversity of the Piedmont area's wines, from their royal Barolo Bricco delle Viole to their simple Barbera d'Alba, said co-director of development Lisa Shivers.

The main event, "A Taste Trip Through Italy" wine dinner will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday, March 23, at the Tides Inn in Irvington. The fee is $150 per person. There will be live and silent auction items.

Reaching across the Atlantic, an Italian themed feast will include seafood brodetto, antipasto misto, osso bucco alla Milanese and tiramisù classico, featuring Italian wines from Marc de Grazia Seletions, said McGrath. Special guest Ross Bouchard of Marc de Grazia will discuss the wines served.

Proceeds from both events go towards the Northern Neck Family

YMCA's Guardian program.

On Stage to wrap up season with Grammy Award winners

The Rappahannock Foundation for the Arts will bring its On Stage 2012-13 season to a close at 7:30 p.m. April 13 with a performance by Steep Canyon Rangers.

The Rangers were recently awarded their first Grammy for Best Bluegrass Album of the Year 2012.

The concert, sponsored by Tri-Star Supermarket, will be held at the Lancaster Middle School Theater in Kilmarnock. Tickets are $35 for adults, or $12 for students. Tickets may be purchased at rappahannockfoundation.org, or 435-0292.

On Stage 2012-13 is funded by Chesapeake Financial Group and in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Virginia Commission for the Arts.

Steep Canyon Rangers are carving out a special spot in the world of bluegrass music with a sound that looks forward and backward at the same time, reported RFA vice president for external communications Julie Geier. Drawing on classic country, honky tonk, early bluegrass and R & B, the Rangers' smooth vocals, smart songwriting, ferocious instrumentals and jaw-dropping harmony are making them favorites among music lovers across the country and around the world.

Although they received a boost in popularity when actor/comedian/banjo player Steve Martin asked them to serve as his backing band in 2009, Steep Canyon Rangers had already earned an audience with their progressive bluegrass sound. Graham Sharp (banjo, harmony vocals) met future band mates Woody Platt (guitar, lead vocals) and Charles R. Humphrey III (bass, harmony vocals) in 1999, while all three were attending the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Drawn together by their love of acoustic music, they began playing impromptu jam sessions. As things progressed, they were drawn more and more to bluegrass and started learning the genre's classic tunes. The main impetus to "go bluegrass" was the input of mandolin player Mike Guggino, an old friend of Platt's. He also owned a cabin in the mountains near the school, and the quartet used that as its rehearsal space.

At first, there was no thought of being in a band. The members were all busy with school and planning professional careers. As they created their own sound by combining traditional and progressive bluegrass with a bit of country and rock, they began to realize they were no longer just a bunch of friends jamming. By the time they graduated, fiddler Nicky Sanders had joined the band's ranks, and Steep Canyon Rangers were getting enough gigs to quit their day jobs and become full-time musicians.

Their first album, "Old Dreams and New Dreams," was released in 2001 on the band's own label. "Mr. Taylor's New Home" appeared in 2002 courtesy of the small indie label Bonfire, and the self-titled "Steep Canyon Rangers" marked the band's first release for Rebel in 2004. Its follow-up, "One Dime at a Time," was recorded mostly live in the studio and won the IBMA's Emerging Artist Award in 2006, with the title tune going to #1 on the Bluegrass Unlimited chart.

In 2010, their solo record, "Deep in the Shade," remained in the Bluegrass Top 10 on Billboard for 18 weeks. In March 2011, the band released its first collaborative record with Steve Martin, "Rare Bird Alert," which debuted at #1 on Billboard's Bluegrass Chart and at #43 on the Billboard Top 200. In February of this year, Steep Canyon Rangers won their first Grammy Award for "Nobody Knows You," Best Bluegrass Album of 2012.

While headlining festivals like MerleFest and Bonnaroo alongside Steve Martin for part of each year, the Rangers continue to perform alone as a quintet on stages such as Telluride, RockyGrass, in addition to being featured on "A Prairie Home Companion" with Garrison Keillor. Recent television appearances by Steve Martin with Steep Canyon Rangers include "Late Night With David Letterman," "The Colbert Report" and "Austin City Limits."

Monty Deihl

Deihl to discuss menhaden industry

The Reedville Fishermen's Museum Winter/Spring Lecture Series continues at 7 p.m. April 1 at Festival Halle at 177 Main Street in Reedville. The museum politely requests a $5 donation. Light refreshments will be served.

Omega Protein director of fishing operations and Reedville plant general manager Monty Deihl will look at Reedville's menhaden reduction industry today, said museum education committee chairman Betty Mountjoy.

"In past lectures we looked at historical Reedville," said Mountjoy. "Now's the time to look at Reedville's current major industry—the menhaden fishery and its sustainable products."

A Reedville native, Deihl is a graduate of Northumberland High School and Randolph-Macon College. A retired U.S. Air Force lieutenant colonel, he has masters' in administration, aeronautical studies and industrial resource strategy.

He served numerous assignments and locations in the USAF around the world, earning a Bronze Star Medal for combat operations in Desert Storm and a Defense Superior Service Award. Before retiring from the service, he served on the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the Pentagon as the U.S. Military's senior nuclear arms control treaty negotiator.

He and his wife, Mary, live on Fleeton Point.

The lecture series is held on first Mondays through May, corresponding with the monthly Monday night fried chicken dinners from 5 to 6:30 at American Legion Post 117 next door.

RAL's April calendar includes two exhibits

The Rappahannock Art League recently posted its special events calendar for April.

All events will be held at the RAL Studio Gallery at 19 North Main Street in Kilmarnock, said marketing committee member Barbara Richards. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. Admission is free and all art work is for sale.

A new exhibit, "It's Fun to Be Green," will open April 2 and continue through April 25, said Richards. Members of the Rappahannock Art League will exhibit original works of art in a variety of mediums. Green will be the predominant color.

The First Friday Reception from 5 to 7 p.m. April 5 will highlight the exhibit. The public is welcome to come meet the exhibiting artists, tour the gallery and enjoy light refreshments, she said.

An Art Forum will be held at 1 p.m. April 22. Jeffrey W. Allison of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts will present "An Album of a Century: Photographer Jacques Henri Lartigue." This lecture explores Lartigue's photographs from his first sincere, often playful presentation of friends, family and French society made as early as age 6 to his later day fashion layouts and portraits, said Richards.

On April 26 and 27, the gallery will host the "Flower Show" exhibit, she said. In this exhibit, members of area garden clubs will use art work by RAL members as the model for their beautiful flower arrangement creations.

Registration due April 1 for Parkinson's Awareness event

On April 10, Rappahannock Westminster-Canterbury will host its annual Parkinson's Awareness Event with featured speaker Dr. James Bennett, chairman of the department of neurobiology and founding director of the Virginia Commonwealth University Parkinson's Disease and Movement Disorders Multidisciplinary Research and Clinical Center.

Bennett's presentation will begin at 1 p.m. in the auditorium on the RW-C campus, 132 Lancaster Drive, Irvington.

"We are fortunate that Dr. Bennett has agreed to join us once again to update us on recent research into Parkinson's," said Rita De Pew, a volunteer leader in RW-C's efforts to serve those with Parkinson's and their care partners. "His presentations have been well received in the past, and I'm certain everyone who attends will find his remarks informative and enlightening."

Dr. Bennett is an international authority on Parkinson's and other movement disorders. During his career he has authored 130 papers and directed research that is leading to a better understanding of Parkinson's.

In addition to his presentation, attendees may visit with representatives of a number of agencies providing assistance and information. Participating organizations include VCU's Parkinson's Disease and Movement Disorders Center, the Parkinson's Disease Research Education and Clinical Center (PADRECC) from McGuire VA Medical Center in Richmond, Rappahannock General Hospital Rehabilitation Center, Carousel Physical Therapy Center and RW-C.

"We are very eager to help members of our community become better informed about what it means to have Parkinson's and what services are available to those with Parkinson's and their care partners," said RW-C president Stuart Bunting.

The public is invited to attend the Parkinson's Awareness Event. Beverages and dessert will be served. Reservations are required; call De Pew at 435-9553 by April 1.

Sweetbay magnolia

Sweetbay magnolia (Magnolia virginiana), sometimes called swamp magnolia, is a beautiful native flowering tree, useful in the landscape. In the Northern Neck, it is usually 20 to 30 feet tall and is semi-deciduous, sometimes losing all of its leaves in harsh winters.

It has attractive, lustrous leaves that are silvery underneath. The flowers, which can appear any time from late spring until September, are creamy white, lemon-scented and two to three inches in diameter. It is sometimes confused with the southern magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora), a larger evergreen tree with medium-coarse glossy leaves.

Sweetbay magnolia tolerates shade but blooms best with more sun. Unlike most other magnolias, it thrives in wet places and will also grow in well-drained locations. In the landscape it can be used as a specimen tree by itself or even as a small tree near a patio.

You may see this tree at the Old Courthouse Demonstration Garden of native plants in Heathsville.

Civil War authority will address historical society

The Northumberland County Historical Society (NCHS) will meet at 2:30 p.m. April 7 at the Ball Memorial Library and Museum at 86 Back Street in Heathsville.

Civil War professor, author and historian Dr. James I. "Bud" Robertson Jr. will present "The Inspiration of General Stonewall Jackson," according to NCHS executive secretary Virginia Burgess.

Dr. Robertson recently retired after 44 years on the Virginia Tech faculty. He has a doctorate from Emory University and honorary doctorates from Randolph-Macon College and Shenandoah University, continued Burgess.

Dr. Robertson is the author or editor of more than 25 books, including biographies of Generals Robert E. Lee, A. P. Hill and Jackson. His biography of Jackson won eight national awards and was used as the basis for the Ted Turner/Warner Brothers movie, "Gods and Generals." His most recent book is The Untold Civil War, published by the National Geographic Society.

He served as executive director of the U. S. Civil War Centennial Commission in the 1960s, and worked with Presidents Kennedy and Johnson in commemorating the 100th anniversary of the War. Currently, he is involved in Virginia's Civil War Sesquicentennial Commission.

Dr. Robertson's presentation will be open to the public, said Burgess. It will be followed by a book signing.

Capt. Robert C. May

IRVINGTON—Retired U.S. Navy Captain Robert Carroll May of Irvington died March 13, 2013.

He was the son of the late Julius J. and Helen F. (Carroll) May of Norwell, Mass.

He was preceded in death by a son, Michael S. May.

Left to cherish his memory are his wife of 57 years, M. Joan May; a daughter, Ellen Lisa May; a son, Robert C. May Jr.; and three grandchildren, Robert C. May III, Stephen B. May and Emily A. May.

Upon graduating from Boston University, he entered the Navy's flight training program. In 1958, Lt. j.g. May was designated as the first Anti-Submarine Warfare Tactical Coordinator in the Navy (NAOS-1). Air Group (RAG) was a new concept in Naval Aviation and Lt. May served as lead navigation instructor for both tactical and surveillance navigation for ground and flight training. Lt. May served as executive officer and commanding officer of the Naval facility on San Salvador Island, in the Bahamas.

Cmdr. May authored the JCS Master Plan for Navigation. This plan included a future space-based navigation system called Navstar Global Positioning System (NAVSTAR/GPS) and a Spread Spectrum, frequency-hopping system called the Joint Tactical Information System, or JTIDS for short. The JTIDS system was the forerunner of our current digital communications system that enables DVD and cell phone capabilities.

After retiring from the Navy,

May co-founded Galaxy Scientific Co. continuing his work in digital communications until retirement to the Northern Neck. He was a member of Rotary, a volunteer at Historic Christ Church, on the board at Rappahannock Westminster-Canterbury, and a member of Indian Creek Yacht and County Club where he served on the board and as president.

Services were held March 20 at Saint Francis de Sales Catholic Church with a private burial.
