

Northern Neck Farm Museum will open with special activities

The Northern Neck Farm Museum—Luther Welch Agriculture Center will open for the 2014 season May 3. Special activities are planned from noon to 4 p.m.

There will be tours of the museum, sawmill demonstration, antique cars, and displays of antique farm equipment and tools, reported administrative assistant Frances Stoughton. Children's activities such as bounce barn, pony rides, face painting and a corn hole game will be available for all to enjoy.

Master Gardeners will be available at their gardening site and food will be available, she added.

The museum is at 12705 Northumberland Highway, Heathsville.

Amnesty program concludes April 30

The Northumberland Public Library amnesty on fines on overdue books continues through the end of the month.

The waiver applies to library materials returned by April 30, no matter how long they have been overdue, said library director Alice Cooper.

Forgiveness of unpaid outstanding fines, which can happen if an overdue book was dropped off but the fine was not paid when the item was returned, also is part of the April amnesty, said Cooper. Library patrons who fall in that category simply need to visit the library by April 30, tell the clerk at the checkout desk about the outstanding fines and request they be voided.

This is a significant break because under current library policy, any patron who has outstanding fines of $5 or more is not permitted to use one of the library's computers, said Cooper.

"We just want to get our books back," she said.

This season marks Steven Smith's fourth term as music director and his third season in the Lewis T. Booker music director chair, said RFA vice president for external communications Julie Geier.

Adult tickets are $35 each and student tickets are $12 each. Tickets are available at 438-5555, rappahannock-foundation.org.

Schooner Virginia to visit

The Schooner Virginia will be in Deltaville Saturday, April 26. The visit coincides with the Deltaville Maritime Museum's Working Watermen's Weekend April 24-27 at Holly Point Nature Park, 287 Jackson Creek Road, Deltaville. Several activities are planned daily. At 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, the first shuttle run leaves the museum for Fishing Bay Harbor Marina for deck tours on Virginia. The shuttle will load next to the park's Children's Garden, pick up passengers at the Deltaville Community Association building, and drop off at the pool parking lot at Fishing Bay. The shuttle will run continuously until 2:30 p.m. and will pick up and drop off at those locations about every 20 minutes. Virginia will continue tours until 4 p.m. on Saturday, and resume tours from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday, April 27.

Morattico museum plans May 3 event

The Morattico Waterfront Museum, 6584 Morattico Road, Morattico, will celebrate its 2014 season opening with new and expanded exhibits from noon to 4 p.m. on May 3.

Opening day visitors also may enjoy al fresco refreshments enhanced by expansive Rappahannock River views from the museum's upper porch, according to curator Jean Bedwell.

New this year is a display highlighting the Ball-Downman Letters written by Joseph Ball II, uncle of George Washington and owner of Morattico Plantation, and subsequent plantation owner Rawleigh Downman in the 18th century, said Bedwell. Also new to the museum's collection in the Wharf Room is a scale model Windmill Point Lighthouse crafted by Capt. George Shelton.

Guests will find expanded exhibits on agriculture as well as the final segment of the "Old Houses of Morattico" exhibit featuring over 30 homes of significance in the Morattico Historic District.

The museum will be open weekends through October. Hours will be noon to 4 p.m. Saturdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays.

The museum is housed in the 1901 Morattico General Store building which operated continuously under nine owners until 2003, said Bedwell. Collections and exhibits emphasize the local watermen's heritage, the function of the general store, early local families, and John Smith—Moraughtacund Indian connection.

From Churchill Downs to Heathsville: The race is on May 3 will mark the 140th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., and the ninth "Run for the Roses" Kentucky Derby Party from 3 to 7 p.m. at Rice's Hotel/Hughlett's Tavern, 73 Monument Place, Heathsville.

Party participants may watch the race on a big-screen TV and bet on their favorite ponies, while they dine on sumptuous food and sip on mint juleps. There also will be an open bar and music by the Honeywind Bluegrass Boys, reported Corinne Anthony of the Rice's Hotel/Hughlett's Tavern Foundation.

Appropriate dress is whatever is fun, be it a lavish hat, or jeans and boots, said Anthony. Creativity will be rewarded to the winners of the best hat contest and the best hat and boots contest.

An auction will offer up a chance to bid on a barn party oyster roast for 20 people at Roanoke plantation in Heathsville, she said. A silent auction will include restaurant gift certificates, wine tastings and artisan-crafted items made by the Tavern Guilds.

Advance tickets are $35 per person and $65 per couple. At-the-gate tickets increase $5 respectively. Group pricing is available. For tickets, visit the tavern or RHHTFoundation.org, or call 580-3377.

Proceeds support the preservation of the tavern and its dependencies.

GO NATIVE, GROW NATIVE

Submitted by Judy Lang of the Virginia Native Plant Society

Eastern Red Columbine

Eastern red columbine (Aquilegia canadensis), one of our most important and attractive perennial wildflowers, is the only columbine native to the Eastern U.S. Growing up to two feet in height, the plants thrive in soils with ample moisture but good drainage and prefer partial shade.

The nodding flowers, usually red and yellow but occasionally all yellow, appear in April and May. They provide nectar for butterflies and are an important food source for early arriving hummingbirds.

The leaves, which somewhat resemble those of the maiden hair fern, are somewhat resistant to the leaf miners which can disfigure the foliage of non-native columbines. A bonus is that deer rarely eat the leaves.

be used in natural woodlands or in flower borders. If a plant likes its location, it will reseed to form a large grouping. Plants are also easy to start from seed but will not flower until the second year after sowing.

Visit Go Native—Grow Native at nmnp.org to learn more about the many benefits of planting Northern Neck natives.

RAL posts May events

The Rappahannock Art League recently announced its special events for May.

Unless otherwise noted, all events take place at the Studio Gallery, 19 North Main Street, Kilmarnock, reported Barbara Pulling. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

A One Woman Show by RAL member Lella Lee Edwards will open May 1 and continue through the month. The show will feature original works, said Pulling.

The show will be the highlight of the First Friday Reception from 5 to 7 p.m. May 2. The public is invited to join members at the gallery to discuss the works with Edwards. Light refreshments will be served, noted Pulling.

On May 3, the RAL will host a sidewalk sale to coincide with Kilmarnock's Shop Local Day. "There will be a great variety of items for sale including framed and unframed paintings, prints, and items from the gift shop," she said.

The RAL will host a Mother's Day Tea at 3 p.m. May 10. Contact the Studio Gallery at 436-9309 to purchase tickets, said Pulling.

Karen Daly of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts will present "Nazi Era Looted Art: Journey to Resolution" at the May Art Forum. The program will begin at 1 p.m. May 19 at the gallery.

Daly will speak on issues of looted art and restitution, particularly of art misappropriated during the World War II era, said Pulling. The presentation will provide a historical overview and the subsequent response of the museum community including the VMFA's experiences in resolving two art restitution claims.

Reflections

by Rev. John Farmer

I Must Open My Heart To See Forever

It seems that the harder I stare into the future the more obscure my vision. I so desperately want a window into tomorrow. Yet I admit that my crystal ball is broken.

Truth is, however, I know more about tomorrow from inventorying yesterday than I do gazing off in the future. What impresses me most is that God, who has held the blinders tight, has blessed my life in so many ways in the past, asks me to trust him with my future. That's what the Bible teaches, I might add. Now at 71, wouldn't you think I would know, do better?

I am such a fixer, such a doer, that I want to stir my life's brew a certain way now and again. A watched pot never boils. Too many cooks spoil the dinner. Yes, familiar adages eh? There are other platitudes as well. They all hail to remind us (me) that I do best that which I require God to perform. Leave it to me and I can stir things up all right. The consequence of my actions hardly resembles that which God has prepared for me. They rather reflect my headstrong way, my willful spirit, and my lack of patience.

God has promised that if I will walk the lane, He'll guide my steps. If I begin the journey-holy, He'll see me to the end. Wow, that is hard to put into practice! For most of my pilgrim's journey, I have had God by the elbow coaxing him along some path I chose. I am so needing of validation that I invoke the Holy power of God to partner my own pride of prejudice, arrogance of spirit.

Down at the ole Baptist Meeting House we like to sing a hymn about better vision. It is "Open my eyes that I may see (Clara H. Scott 1841-1897)." "Open my eyes that I may see glimpses of truth Thou hast for me.... Open my eyes, illumine me, Spirit divine." Another similar theme exits in an expanded chorus "Open Our Eyes, Lord." This writer harps that we need help to see, to hear our Lord. True enough.

The establishment of clear vision has to do with removing the earthly blinders that we place upon ourselves. God wants to bless us. God wants to heal us. God wants to call us home (usually before we are ready to give up loved ones, or yield to his call personally). I know that this is His wish for us. To establish a clear vision, we have to first remove our selves from the picture.

God has promised that if I will walk the lane, He'll guide my steps. If I begin the journey-holy, He'll see me to the end.

Wow, that is hard to put into practice!

We have to get our eyes on Jesus... eyes on Jesus.

Why, oh why does it seem that hindsight is so 20/20, when life looms afar? Ramble on, though I might, I realize that God withholds the future mainly because I couldn't deal with the impact of it all. Not to know about this and that matter of my future may better prepare for faithful living than if I actually knew about the where or when of it all.

Scripture holds that Jesus healed a blind man and caused quite a stir. I need a minute to ponder that text (John 9:25). So often I snugly gather up myself thinking that we of the household of faith have it made — somehow we are extraordinarily special to Christ. His text tells otherwise. He loves sinners just as much as saints (maybe more).

Is it possible that my sin clouds my visions? Yes! It is also evidently possible that God is preparing my heart for things that I shall see someday. A futuristic vision would have to include bad things as well as good. He is sparing me the pain of clear vision.

So, what to do? What to do? This is harder than trying to ponder my sightlessness. The Scriptural edict: live by faith, trusting God to own the future.

The song I was singing earlier can fortify me if I will let it. It asks God to open my eyes, to open my ears, to open my mouth, to open my heart. There is a catch to the hymn. It is that I see, hear, speak words, that portray God's will—not mine. The prayer of Jesus lays down the same path—not my will but Thine be done.

My struggle to see clearly is an earthly preoccupation. What I need in my life is to have faith enough to trust the God of miracles with whatever lies ahead, or around the bend. In some ways I am like the pilot of a large river tow, or a large sea vessel. In order to get down river, to cross the sea, many decisions are made long pre-emptory the course. I need to make decisions faith-based, and in the right sequence if I am to be at the juncture of life where God wants me to be at in any given opportunity in my future.

Another issue looms: Maybe I don't have a future. Who promised me tomorrow anyway? That thought lays in my lap a greater need than clear vision. My faith, which trusts God with tomorrow, also has to allow Him to remove me from this life, before any contemplated period of time expires.

I grew up believing that "seeing was believing." Fact is, that if I believe, I really don't need to see. I need to trust God.

Doctors urged to screen youngsters for alcohol use

Children as young as middle-schoolers should be screened on their use of alcohol, according to Dr. Patricia Kokotailo, director of adolescent medicine at the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health.

Kokotailo is the lead author of a policy statement released recently by the Committee on Substance Abuse for the American Academy of Pediatrics. The policy recommends doctors screen all adolescents for alcohol use.

"This policy statement provides better evidence about how alcohol affects the brains of young people and why it is important to screen children," said Kokotailo.

New evidence on the impact of alcohol on the developing brain is adding urgency to the recommendation, says Kokotailo.

"A remarkable amount of brain development is still occurring for young people through their 20s," she said. "The parts of the maturing brain most impacted by drinking are essential for developing organizational skills, emotional regulation, abstract thinking, and impulse control."

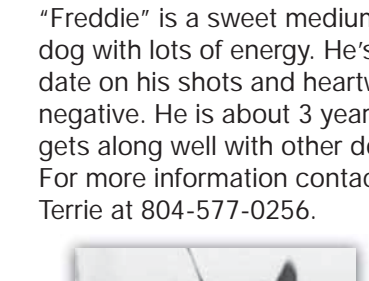

The policy statement also cites research that concludes the younger people are when they start drinking, the more likely they are to have significant problems in their lifetimes, including abuse and addiction.
